AID RUSHED TO FLYING FAMILY AFTER S O S

RESCUE VESSEL UNABLE TO FIND PLANE AT SPOT

Messages by Hutchinson Said He Was Forced to Descend.

SIGNALS SUDDENLY CEASE AFTER HOUR

Accident Occurs in Perilous Waters Off Greenland Down in Icy Sea.

Angmagsalik, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The transatlantic airplane City of Richmond, whose eight passengers included a woman and two children, sent distress signals today from the dangerous ice-packed waters off eastern Greenland, then its radio suddenly became silent.

George R. Hutchinson, pilot of the plane, reported he had been forced down, and for more than an hour sent his position as 65 degrees 28 minutes, north latitude, and 38 degrees 45 minutes, west longitude, or 30 miles due southwest of Angmagsalik.

The British steam trawler, Lord Talbert, picked up the S O S at 3:10 p. m. Greenwich mean time (10:10 a. m. Eastern standard time), and immediately raced for the spot, 25 miles away. The signals kept coming, and were confirmed by the Angmagsalik government wireless station.

Only Ice Found at Spot.

At 4:23 p. m. (11:23 a. m., Eastern standard time) the wireless station and the trawler could not raise the City of Richmond, and the Lord Talbot reached the distress position at 7:22 p. m. (2:22 p. m., Eastern standard time). There was nothing but ice in sight.

Three hours later the trawler was still circling the spot, her searchlights playing over the floe-covered waters, while the Governor of Greenland Knud Oldendow, set rescue forces at work from this port.

Earlier in the evening a motorboat had been sent out with orders to search the coastline area. Preparations were made to send other boats into the dangerous area tonight and tomorrow.

There was some disposition here to entertain fears that the plane had sunk with all its passengers aboard. The thrusts of the ice floes against the pontoons could have been responsible for this, it was argued.

Rescue Efforts Promised.

But Gov. Oldendow was more optimistic in a statement to the Associated Press.

"Everything will be done to rescue the American fliers if rescue is possible," he said, "but unfortunately

90-Year-Old Son Finds His Mother, 115, Dead

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dora Meyers, 115 years old, was found dead in a room of her home tonight by her only son, John, 90, with whom she had made her home for several years.

The son said his mother had been complaining for several days, but her illness was not regarded as serious.

Unidentified Man Is Killed by Auto

Arlington Motorist Being Held Following Fatal Hit-Run Accident.

A well-dressed man, about 35 years old, was killed last night when struck by an automobile as he attempted to cross the street at Sixth and C streets northeast. He died shortly after being admitted to Casualty Hospital, without regaining consciousness.

Early this morning his body remained unidentified in the District Morgue. Police said he was the victim of a hit-and-run driver.

A short time after the accident, police of the Ninth Precinct arrested the driver of a machine cruising about several blocks from the scene. Although no charge had been placed against him shortly after midnight, he was detained in the station. Police said his name was John Aubrey Decatur, 25, of Arlington, Va.

The dead man was described as being of medium build. He wore a dark coat and dark gray trousers with a fine pin stripe. His hat was light gray and he wore a tan shirt and black shoes. His hair was dark.

LETTERS TO FORMER LOVE OF BERN FOUND

Missives in Handbag Taken From Trunk; Brother Remains Silent.

San Francisco, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Examiner said today it had located a handbag belonging to Miss Dorothy Millette, the missing "other woman" in the life of Paul Bern, film executive who committed suicide, and that the bag contained letters from Bern.

The letters, facsimiles of which were published by the newspaper, spoke of Miss Millette's plans for leaving New York for San Francisco and of a financial arrangement involving Bern and Miss Millette.

The Examiner said the letters were found while police were searching a trunk left by Miss Millette in a San Francisco hotel just before she left suddenly and vanished on a Sacramento-bound river steamer in the early hours of September 7, after Bern had committed suicide in Hollywood.

The trunk contained an expensive wardrobe and toilet articles, but police said there was nothing that would throw a direct light on the motive for the suicide.

However, on a writing pad in Miss Millette's effects was a single word, "Justification," in reverse, as if made by blotting.

Whether this word was part of a note that might help to clear the mystery or why Bern should kill him-

FIGHTING IN CHACO ENTERS THIRD DAY

Paraguayans and Bolivians Renew Fierce Battle for Fort Boqueron.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Thousands of Paraguayan and Bolivian soldiers battled fiercely today for possession of Fort Boqueron in the Gran Chaco, continuing three days of bitter fighting.

A brief communique from the Paraguayan war department said, "fighting continued in the vicinity of Fort Boqueron and our forces have taken a number of prisoners."

(Dispatches from La Paz, the Bolivian capital, said that the Fort had not been recaptured by Paraguay as claimed here yesterday.)

Public excitement continued high in Asuncion and crowds paraded through the streets singing the national anthem. A two-minute period of silence in honor of the Paraguayans killed at Fort Boqueron was observed this morning.

The newspaper El Diario printed a communique signed "Chief of the Paraguayan Air Force, Almona Cid," describing the first air battle of the present Chaco conflict.

"Lieuts. Rocholi and Garcia, pilot and observer of a bombing plane carrying twelve bombs, flew over Fort Boqueron on September 9," the communique said.

"They were attacked by three Bolivian planes. Lieut. Rocholi was

GANG ATTACKS U. S. OFFICIAL IN MANCHURIA

Americans and Britishers Fight Off Robbers With Golf Clubs.

100 REPORTED KILLED OR HURT IN DERAILING

600 Robbed and Others Are Kidnaped From Train by Band Near Harbin.

Harbin, Manchuria, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—More than 100 persons were reported killed or injured, about 600 robbed and an undetermined number kidnaped when bandits derailed the regular Changchun-Harbin train last night near Situn.

Another bandit band was reported to have attacked George C. Hanson, United States consul general here with a party of Americans and British on a local golf course and to have seriuosly wounded two of the British players.

Aid Rushed to Scene.

Doctors, nurses and first-aid supplies were rushed from Harbin today to the scene of the train wreck, 40 miles southeast. Chinese authorities said the locomotive and first six passenger coaches tumbled down a steep embankment when it struck the roadbed where rails had been removed.

Henry Hilgard Villard, son of Oswald Garrison Villard, publisher of the American magazine, the Nation, was a passenger. He escaped in what was described as the worst disaster in the history of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

The train left Changchun at 834 o'clock last night. The accident cut off Harbin communication from the west, east and north. The reports said survivors of the wreck were robbed by the bandits and some of them were kidnaped.

Fought Off With Clubs.

Five Chinese brigands swooped down on the golf players with loaded revolvers, but were fought off with golf clubs by the Americans and British.

Those wounded were a Mr. Melish, manager of a Shanghai and Hongkong banking corporation, and his assistant, Mr. Mansel.

First reports that Consul General Hanson was wounded also when defending Mr. Melish later proved in-

Extraterritoriality In Manchuria to End

Changchun, Manchuria, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The government announced today it will abolish extraterritoriality in Manchuria after Japan, Soviet Russia and "other countries" recognize the new State of Manchukuo. The date for this abolition was not set also because complete reorganization of the courts, prisons and legal system are involved.

Extraterritoriality grants a foreign nation the right to try its own nationals in its own courts set up on foreign soil, and similar privileges.

North Sea Lashed By 60-Mile Wind

At Least One Is Dead as British Shipping Is Harassed by Gale.

London, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A 60-mile wind whipped the North Sea and nearby waters into fury today, harassing shipping, and causing at least one death. A French steamer rescued a man from a sinking motorboat near Shouwen, while another passenger in the small craft was drowned.

The steam collier Golfer was driven ashore in the outer Hebrides and broke up, but the crew reached safety. Just off the Hook of Holland, near the entrance to the Meuse River, the Spanish steamer Marques del Turia sent distress signals, while channel shipping was seriously handicapped and slowed up.

The Finnish barque, Archibald Russell, one of the famous fleet of Australian grain ships, dragged her anchors off Deal and was swept toward the infamous Goodwin Shoals, but managed to clear herself as the wind abated, and continued down the channel toward Australia.

MAINE'S VOTING TODAY TO BEGIN NATIONAL DRIVE

Pine Tree State Results Expected to Show Election Trend.

EIGHT PRIMARIES TO FEATURE WEEK ALSO

Gov. Roosevelt Starts His Long Tour of Western Cities Tonight.

(Associated Press.)

The political campaign will be stirred to intensity this week with primaries in eight States, the general elections in Maine today, and Gov. Roosevelt starting his swing into the West.

The Democratic presidential candidate will leave Albany tonight after receiving returns from Maine, where a governor and three House members are to be elected.

Meanwhile, both Republican and Democratic leaders will watch with interest the activities of the American Legion convention in Portland, Oreg., which Secretary of War Hurley is to attend.

Republicans contend they will win in Maine, which they regard as regularly Republican, but the Democrats say they will take at least one congressional seat. Burleigh Martin is the Republican gubernatorial candidate opposing Louis J. Brann (Democrat), former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster (Republican) and John G. Utterback (Democrat) have fought hard for the Third congressional seat.

Maine Campaign Closes.

The Maine campaign ended Saturday night with Secretary Mills at Portland assailing Roosevelt, and with Gov. Joseph B. Ely and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, urging election of a Democratic slate. A large vote has been forecast, although presidentia electors will not be decided upon until November 8.

Primary elections will be held tomorrow in Arizona, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, Vermont and Washington, and in Georgia on Wednesday. In addition a run-off primary will be held in South Carolina tomorrow between Senator

Man Held in Crash Speeds to Wedding

Capital Man, Under Bail in Death, Rushes to His Fiancee in West.

Orval E. Turner, of 1775 California street northwest, District postoffice employe, who was held in Uniontown, Pa., after his automobile killed Vincent Batovic, a hospital orderly, Friday night, was speeding to Kansas City, Mo., last night, in the same machine, to be married Wednesday morning.

Turner, who was released on $1,000 bail, had designated Wednesday morning as the time for his marriage. On being released last night, he told police he was determined to keep the date and avoid leaving his bride "waiting at the church." Turner has 1,000 miles to cover before the time for his wedding.

Turner has been exonerated by a coroner's jury, but District Attorney Wade Knewell decided to investigate the accident further because his office "didn't have sufficient time to get exact details." While Turner is speeding toward marriage, County Detective Jack Hann is continuing an investigation of the accident.

President Reveals Report On Bonus Army Inquiry

The text of the President's announcement, making public the Attorney General's report on the investigation into the bonus army, follows:

On July 28 I announced that I had directed the Department of Justice to exhaustively investigate and report in full upon the incidents of the so-called bonus riots of that day in Washington and to present the facts, through sworn witnesses, to the Grand Jury. I further stated that I should make the Attorney General's report public when received by me.

The investigation has been completed. In giving out the report which shows the character of many of the persons assembled, the incidents and character of the instigators of the riots, I wish to state emphatically that the extraordinary proportion of criminal, communist and nonveteran elements amongst the marchers as shown by this report, should not be taken to reflect upon the many thousands of honest, law-abiding men who came to Washington with full right of presentation of their views to the Congress. This better element and their leaders acted at all times to restrain crime and violence, but after the adjournment of Congress, a large portion of them returned to their homes and gradually these better elements lost control. This report should correct the many misstatements of fact as to this incident with which the country has been flooded.

The complete report as submitted to the President by the Attorney General follows:

Immediately following the riot by the so-called bonus army on July 28, you directed that an investigation and report thereon be made in this department. We have completed it, and I submit herewith a summary of the result. A vast amount of material in the form of reports, affidavits and documentary evidence has been accumulated. It is only possible

STAND ON REICH PLEA UPHELD BY HERRIOT

Urges World Understanding in Accepting U. S. Gift of War Monument.

Meaux, France, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Premier Edouard Herriot pleaded with the world today to understand French "uneasiness over the noise of certain dangerous manifestations" in connection with the armaments question as he accepted an American gift of a monument on the Marne battlefield.

The premier defended the French stand that Germany's demands for equality in arms must be taken to the League of Nations and he praised President Hoover's disarmament proposals in a fervent address heard by about 1,000 persons.

Argentina and Uruguay Will Resume Relations

Buenos Aires, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Argentina and Uruguay will resume diplomatic relations early this week as a result of recent direct negotiations between the two governments, it was understood today.

Uruguay severed relations with Argentina on July 13 this year as a result of alleged unfriendly treatment of her naval officers in the neighboring republic.

KHAKI SHIRTS CHIEF HITS EJECTION 'ALIBI'

Ellison Charges Attempt to Justify Using of Force on Bonus Marchers.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's issuance of Attorney General Mitchell's report on eviction of the bonus army was termed "a political alibi" in a statement yesterday by R. B. Ellison, who described himself as national organizer of the Khaki Shirts of America, and former national contact officer of the Bonus Expeditionary Force.

"In reading the latest effort of the administration to justify its forcible eviction of the bonus army from Washington," he said, "one is first struck by the fact that its release to the press and, the public is timed to coincide with the opening of the national convention of the American Legion, where President Hoover and his henchmen must make their last desperate bid to regain the respect of the former service men of the country.

"Like all previous administration statements on the subject, the whitewash for the administration is mud for the bonus army, an attempt to justify the use of force against unarmed and helpless men, women and children by slandering those against whom the force was directed. * * *

RECORD TOTAL OF FELONS IN "ARMY" HERE

Check Shows More Than Third Not in Military Service.

RADICAL AGITATORS BLAMED FOR RIOTS

Glassford's Claim He Did Not Ask Troops Denied in Report to Hoover.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

In a voluminous report on the rioting of the bonus army here on July 28, Attorney General Mitchell revealed yesterday that a check on 4,723 individuals disclosed 1,069 police records and 829 criminal convictions.

A total of 252 "repeaters" were identified from fingerprints, 149 with prior conviction against them, 49 with convictions, 28 who had been adjudged guilty 3 times in various parts of the country, and 28 with longer records in crime.

From other checks, the Justice Department estimated that between one-third and one-fourth of the members of the B. E. F. had no military service records.

Communist Agitation.

"As soon as the bonus march was initiated, and as early as May, 1932," the report says, "the Communist party undertook an organized campaign to foment the movement and induced radicals to join the marchers to Washington."

The published summary of the police records showed 13 charges of murder, 167 cases of larceny and theft, 88 of burglary, 63 of robbery, 32 of automobile theft, 84 of desertion and other military offenses, 98 of drunkenness, 46 of assault, 8 of rape and 27 of other sex offenses. A total of 107 additional cases involved disorderly conduct and vagrancy.

These facts were obtained by checking the records of those who applied to the Veterans' Administration for transportation home, against the files of the Bureau of Criminal Identification in the Department of Justice. Among the convicted bonus seekers were found seven murderers, two gamblers, 44 forgers and counterfeiters, 10 violators of the narcotic laws and 16 men guilty of felonious offenses against the family and children.

"Record Number of Criminals."

"It is probable the bonus army brought into the City of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that ever had been assembled in the city at any one time," the report says at another point.

"This experience demonstrates," the Attorney General concluded, "that it is intolerable that organized bodies of men having a grievance or demand upon the Government should be allowed to encamp in the city and attempt to live off the community like soldiers billeted in an enemy country. Attempts by such groups to intimidate or coerce Congress into granting their demands hurt rather than help their cause, and can only end as this one did, in riot and disorder. The available facts demonstrate that the bonus marchers who remained in the city

Boy Near Germantown Kills Brother With 'Unloaded Gun'

Old-Make Revolver Is Fired Suddenly as Five Youths Discuss Taking Swim; Shooting Termed Accidental and Lad Not Held.

A happy Sunday gathering in the front parlor of a farm house in the rural district near Germantown, Md., ended in tragedy yesterday when one of four brothers was shot and fatally wounded by another.

The dead youth was Charles Sutherland, 19. He was shot by his brother, Leslie, 17, who said he "didn't know the gun was loaded."

The two boys, in company with another brother, Larkin, 14, and two foster-brothers, Ralph and John Wenzel, were sitting about the living room of their home, about a mile off the Frederick Pike. They had just returned from a hike over the countryside and were discussing the chances of going swimming before lunch time.

A merry tune echoed through the house from a phonograph in the corner. Leslie was fumbling with an old-make revolver, a type used during the Civil War. The other brothers roamed about the room as they discussed the problem of "goin' swimmin'!"

Suddenly a resounding explosion filled the room. Charles pitched to the floor, blood streaming from a bullet wound in the stomach.

The boys were horror-stricken. Leslie held the still smoking revolver in his hand.

Charles was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring. He died two hours later.

As soon as Leslie learned that his brother's injuries proved fatal he hurried home, seized with overwhelming remorse.

He found the revolver on the floor where he dropped it after the shooting. Picking it up, Leslie went to the back yard, placed the weapon on a chopping block and smashed it to bits with an ax.

"I could never stand to have that thing around the house," the grief-stricken youth sobbed.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott termed the shooting accidental and said Leslie would not be held.

The brothers are sons of Mrs. Gertrude Sutherland Wenzel and George Wenzel.

Broad Scope of Extortion Plot Aimed at Brides Bared

At Least Four Chicago Social Leaders Threatened, Investigation Reveals; Man and Wife Held Claim They Were Only Agents in Scheme.

Chicago, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Another socially prominent suburban family disclosed that it was the target of extortion demands as investigators pushed an inquiry into a plot directed against daughters of at least four social leaders.

George B. Harrington, Lake Forest, president of the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Co., revealed that he received a written demand for money under threat of harm to his daughter, Sophie.

In each case the extortion letters were sent to persons whose daughters were about to be married. The letters, police said, were worded almost identically and named abduction and death for the girls as penalties if the money were not forthcoming. Most of the letters asked $2,000 or $3,000.

Rudolph Diez, a grocer, seized as police said he picked up a dummy package in response to an extortion note, was held by Evanston police along with his wife, Bertha, as suspects. Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston said he would charge Diez tomorrow with extortion and hold his wife as an accessory. Three of the families said they would push prosecution.

Diez insisted a "tall man with a big black mustache" hired him to pick up the dummy package early Saturday morning. Police, expressing doubt of his story, nevertheless started a search for the supposed brains of the plot.

Other families who received extortion demands were: Edwin M. Ashcraft, jr., Evanston, millionaire corporation lawyer, whose daughter, Ann, yesterday married Raymond Otis Mitchell, Minneapolis lawyer; Ernest H. Noyes, Chicago, wealthy aluminum manufacturer, whose daughter, Florence, Tuesday married George Senseny, of St. Louis; William Southworth Miller, vice president of the Northern Trust Co., whose daughter, Mary, is to be married Tuesday to Charles Nancrede Proctor of Boston. Miss Harrington is to marry Jacob Bishoff September 22.

The Chicago Association of Commerce Crime Organizations, the "Secret Six," was advised of the notes by the families and entered the investigation along with police. Police and "Secret Six" representatives guarded two of the weddings last week, mingling in full dress with guests.

Police said they believed the plotters obtained "leads" from the society columns of newspapers.

50,000 IN PORTLAND FOR LEGION SESSION

Bonus Question Is Foremost Among Problems Before National Convention.

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The feverish activity of a great peacetime movement by the military and former military men of the Nation swept through Portland today as the American Legion prepared to open its fourteenth national convention.

About 50,000 visitors participated in brilliant and noisy preconvention festivities, with the legislative and political aspect of the meeting overshadowing all else as the grouped legionnaires awaited the call to order by National Commander Henry L. Stevens, jr., tomorrow.

Bonus legislation, brought vividly before the world's eye by the unparalleled march on Washington, D. C., by the bonus army, held the spotlight of controversial questions, with a recommendation for immediate payment assured, leaders said.

Hanford MacNider, past national commander, who has expressed opposition to immediate payment and upheld the administration viewpoint, arrived today, but was called back immediately because of the serious illness of one of his children at Mason City, Iowa.

Mrs. MacNider, accompanying him, left the train at Spokane last night, returning east by plane.

MacNider, before leaving, refused to discuss the bonus question, asserting he was here merely to visit old companions and associates, and that he was on "no special mission." To none of the officials of the legion to whom he spoke did he mention the bonus, they said.

The battle over the post of national commander to succeed Stevens continued, with no particular candidate favored over others in a contest involving a dozen or more candidates.

The buttonholing of delegates, discussion of platforms on national matters involving the legion, and strategical maneuvers comparable to the activities of national political candidates continued in all the hotel lobbies, which were crisscrossed by the banners of rival candidates.

Bands, drum corps, sirens, bells and whistles turned Portland's avenues into canyons of echoing sound, as the legionnaires made holiday of convention eve. Flags, banners, festoons, placards and bunting brightened the city.

On the waterfront lay trim warships of the United States and Canada on dress parade, with the cruiser Omaha, temporary flagship of the Nation's entire navy, occupying the honor position. Her four-star flag flying at the peak denoted she carries Admiral R. H. Leigh, chief of the United States battle force.

Hurley to Be Guarded At Legion Convention

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Capt. McSwain, of the United States secret service, has been placed in charge of a detail of Federal officers that will guard Secretary of War Hurley during his visit to the legion convention here, the United Press learned tonight.

The measure was considered merely as precautionary. Hurley had not arrived in Portland tonight. Legion leaders said they expected him tomorrow morning by plane.

Washington prior to and at the time of the eviction. It is perhaps true that a percentage of these were not former service men.

"But they were not a part of the bonus expeditionary force. Their known members were not permitted to enter the camps of the B. E. F.—whose population was more than 60 times that of the radical group—and those who entered the camps and attempted to agitate were summarily ejected.

"One of the problems of national headquarters of the B. E. F. during the entire stay of the bonus army was to prevent its members from causing physical injury to such agitators. * * *

"On the day before the eviction, Walter W. Waters, commander of the B. E. F., had asked an administration official to throw a cordon about the building occupied by the Communist group so that trouble could be averted during the evacuation. This request was ignored.

Crime Charges Scored.

"The attempt to brand the bonus army as a criminal organization, 'the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever been assembled in the city at one time,' falls flat by the Attorney General's own figures. It reveals that 22.6 per cent of 4,723 bonus marchers from whom fingerprints were obtained by the Veterans' Bureau had police records.

"It is not necessary to attempt to refute these records. The B. E. F. did not ask the veterans whom it enrolled if they had ever been arrested any more than it asked what their religious beliefs were. It required only that they give satisfactory proof of honorable service in the World War and that they abide by the B. E. F. regulations and the law of the land. * * *

"During the entire period that the bonus army was in Washington only 341 members of the bonus army were arrested for law violations. * * *

Contradictions Claimed.

"As to 'levying tribute' and 'intimidating housewives,' reports of such activities were occasionally received by national headquarters and were investigated by the intelligence department of the B. E. F. In most instances the reports were found to be without foundation; in others, it was found that those guilty were residents of the District of Columbia, not members of the bonus army, but taking advantage of the presence of the veterans to conduct their 'racket.'

Ellison said "self-contradictions" appeared in the Attorney General's report.

"The attempt to disclaim responsibility," the statement continued, "for the death of the child of Bernard Myers, a bonus marcher, from malnutrition, but hastened by gassing at Camp Marks, is cruel. No post mortem was performed on the child to establish the cause of death, and the statement that gas thrown by the evicting troops did not contribute to or hasten death was based on a superficial examination by an officer of the Chemical Warfare Service of the Army."

B. E. F. REPORT MADE PUBLIC BY HOOVER

1. The entry of the bonus army into the District of Columbia.

The first contingent of the bonus army arrived about May 27. On June 3 information reached the department that a contingent from Cleveland, led by C. B. Cowan, and another from Detroit, led by John T. Pace, comprising about 1,300 men, gathered at the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Cleveland and had held up a mail train and attempted to commandeer transportation to Washington. Cowan, one of these leaders, has a long police record; he has been convicted and sentenced twice for forgery in Ohio and was sentenced to thirteen months for robbing the mails to the United States Penitentiary at Atlanta in 1928. Pace, a well-known Communist leader, has an extended police record. By one means and another these groups and others obtained transportation to Washington. By the middle of June they had congregated here in large numbers. They entered into possession of various tracts of Government property, on some of which were old buildings. In some instances permission to do so was given by the police authorities with the acquiescence of the Treasury, with the understanding that the occupancy would be temporary and would be discontinued at request and when Congress adjourned. Other Government tracts were seized without permission and occupied by members of the bonus army. The number of bonus army marchers in Washington at the time of the adjournment of Congress on July 16 has been variously estimated at from 8,000 to 15,000. Several thousand left shortly after Congress adjourned, but other groups came in, and at the time of the riot the best estimates are that there were from 6,000 to 8,000 bonus marchers in the city.

Quality of Army.

2. The quality of the Bonus Army.

To understand the conditions causing the riot it is necessary to know something of the character of the men in the Bonus Army.

(a) Number of marchers who were not ex-service men. A considerable number of the marchers were not in military service during the World War. An approximation of the number is impossible, but two items of reliable information throw some light on this question.

Prior to the riot of July 28, 341 members of the Bonus Army had been arrested at various dates for a variety of offenses, including disorderly conduct, parading without a permit, assault with a dangerous weapon, destruction of private property, trespass on private property, and soliciting alms. Seventeen were arrested by the police on July 28 and 4 on July 29, making a total of 362. Unfortunately, the police did not fingerprint all of these persons for identification, but 51 of them, including those arrested for disturbing the peace near the White House, were fingerprinted. Of these, 16, or approximately one-third, had no World War service record.

Prior to June 12, 3,656 of the marchers who were arriving at Washington registered on the muster rolls of the Bonus Army, giving their names, Army numbers and other data respecting their World War service. These muster rolls came into the hands of the police and ultimately to the Veterans Bureau, which commenced to check the names to ascertain whether the marchers were former service men. Learning what use was being made of the muster rolls, after June 12 the marchers discontinued the practice of registering. These first 3,656 registered arrivals had been checked by the War Department and the Veterans' Bureau against their records of World War service men, with the result that of the total of 3,656, 877, or a little more than one-fourth, could not be identified in either department as having had World War service. It is possible that some of the 877 were ex-service men, and could not be identified because of meager information, but the bulk of them were evidently impostors. It has been reported in the press that Director Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau, has said that over 90 per cent of the Bonus Army were ex-service men. Gen. Hines made no such statement. He did make the statement on July 23 that he believed not more than 8,000 veterans had ever been present at any one time, but the 877 men not identified as veterans were part of the 3,656 registered to which I have referred.

(b) Number of bonus marchers with criminal or police records—Two sources of information are available on this subject. Of the 51 arrested men fingerprinted by police prior to the riot of July 28 and checked in the fingerprint division of this department, 17, or an even one-third, had been convicted of various offenses, including larceny, assault, sex offenses, forgery, robbery, military offenses and disorderly conduct. A more striking result is obtained from the check by the Criminal Identification Bureau of this department of the fingerprints of 4,723 of the bonus marchers who were admittedly veterans and applied for and obtained loans from the Veterans Bureau after Congress adjourned, for the ostensible purpose of returning to their homes. Of these 4,723, 1,069 were found to have police records.

Eight hundred and twenty-nine, or nearly 1 in 5 of the World War service men among the bonus marchers who obtained loans, had been convicted for various offenses, including assault, larceny, burglary, embezzlement, robbery, felonious homicide, forgery and counterfeiting, rape, sex offenses, and narcotic drug violations.

I am submitting also with this report, as exhibit "A," a detailed alphabetical list of each one of the 1,069 men out of the 4,723 borrowers who have police records, giving in detail the time and place of their arrests or convictions. It will be noted that many of them had been repeatedly convicted under various names. When it is realized that the men who applied for loans to go home after Congress adjourned were the most sensible and the least disorderly, that many with criminal records no doubt refrained from disclosing their identity for any purpose, and a considerable portion of the Bonus Army were not former service men and included Communists, radicals, and disorderly elements, which always congregate under such conditions, it is probable the Bonus Army brought into the City of Washington the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at any one time.

Communists in Ranks.

(c) Communists—As soon as the bonus march was initiated, and as early as May, 1932, the Communist party undertook an organized campaign to foment the movement, and induced radicals to join the marchers to Washington. As early as the edition of May 31, 1932, the Daily Worker, a publication which is the central organ of the Communist party in the United States, urged worker veteran delegations to go to Washington on June 8. Under date of June 1, Emanuel Levin, alias Herman Levin, managing editor of the Daily Worker, with a long police record for Red activities and rioting, arrived in the city. He then contended that the bonus march had been largely planned in the headquarters of the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, a Communist organization with headquarters in New York City. Another Communist leader present in Washington was John T. Pace, who led a large contingent of bonus marchers to Washington, and in a demonstration on July 25, 1932, near the White House, he was arrested by the Washington police. Pace was elected field marshal of the Detroit bonus marchers. James W. Ford, colored, now candidate for Vice President on the national ticket of the Communist party, was one of the bonus marchers arrested on July 29. Clair Cowan, another Communist leader, led a contingent of bonus marchers from Cleveland consisting of several hundred men. Cowan himself was intercepted and arrested at Pittsburgh on June 8 and did not reach Washington. Another leader of the radical element among the bonus marchers was Walter F. Eicker. He was arrested on July 21, and again on July 25, by the Washington police. Another leader of the demonstration made by bonus marchers on July 25 at the White House was Sylvester G. McKinney, a Communist organizer with a police record for Communist activity.

One of the bonus camps—that within Twelfth and Fourteenth and B and C streets southwest—was occupied principally by Communists headed by Pace. Possession of this Government property had been seized and occupied by these marchers without any authority. During June and July, while the bonus army was present, Communist meetings were held in this city frequently. The files of this department contain voluminous reports of these meetings, at many of which incendiary speeches and plans to stir the bonus army to violence and bloodshed were made. During the various disorders, including the final riot, persons identified as radicals and Communists were observed among the disturbers. There is irrefutable proof that a very large body of Communists and radicals, some former service men and some not, were in the city as part of the bonus army, circulating among them and working diligently to incite them to disorder.

(d) The investigations we have conducted have demonstrated that a very much larger proportion of the bonus army than was realized at the time, consisted of ex-convicts, persons with criminal records, radicals and non-service men. On the other hand, a very considerable number were genuine ex-service men of good intentions and clean records. This is particularly true of the conditions prior to the adjournment of Congress and before the exodus of those who realized that they had no further justification for remaining in the city. Some of their leaders were decent and law-abiding, and others were not.

Conditions Prior to Riots.

3. Further conditions prior to the rioting.

After the adjournment of Congress the quality of the men in the bonus army steadily deteriorated. With Congress gone, no possible excuse existed for remaining in the city. No one here had authority to grant their demands. Many of the better elements left, but small groups of trouble makers augmented the forces. The army was repeatedly asked to disband and vacate Government property, but refused. It circulated around the city individually and in small groups and even in large bodies, asking or demanding money and supplies. Many reports have been received that they practically levied tribute on small merchants and intimidated housewives when their demands were refused. Some of them boarded running boards of cars driven by women and were disagreeable and insulting. It was quite impossible for such a body of men to be in the city without violating a variety of laws and ordinances. They were living in partly dismantled buildings which they had seized, and on vacant tracts in shacks constructed of debris. It was impossible that the conditions could continue. The health authorities of the District inspected their camps. We have a report from the health officer of the District stating that—

The sanitary conditions were necessarily very bad. Open latrines were freely used and, of course, flies and vermin infested the camps due to these and to refuse scattered about. In some instances vacant buildings with no toilet facilities, were used for latrines. The fact that it was warm weather increased the dangers incident to such practices, as well, causing, in many instances, foul odors that were extremely objectionable to citizens who lived near.

In one instance open latrines were found within 400 feet of the large wholesale and retail market at Fifth and Florida avenue northeast. The exceptionally dangerous character of such a condition as this is obvious.

There was no time during the weeks that the bonus army was here when its presence, under the conditions that existed, was not an extreme menace to the public health, as soiled and vermin-infested bedding, exposed garbage, open latrines and inadequate facilities for the preparation of food and the disposition of waste inevitably leads to the development and spread of contagious and infectious diseases."

Notwithstanding all these conditions, they were tolerated and gently dealt with by the community in the hope that they would see the futility of remaining and would consent to return to their homes. Before adjournment, Congress had provided for loans by the Veterans' Bureau to those holding bonus certificates to enable them to leave. The Secretary of War conferred with their leaders and urged them to disband, and made a definite offer to furnish them with Army trucks for part of the transportation and to arrange with National Guard units to transport them across the States, and still they declined to leave.

Building Work Delayed.

In the latter part of June the Treasury Department commenced to press for possession of some of the property occupied by the bonus marchers and which was urgently needed by the Government to carry on its program of public improvements, one purpose of which was to furnish employment. The bonus marchers were obstructing and delaying this program. I attach herewith, as Exhibit "B," a report from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, dated August 3, giving the particulars respecting this situation.

One of the tracts occupied by the Bonus Army, and at which the riot of July 28 later commenced, is known as Reservations A and B, bounded by Third and Sixth streets and Pennsylvania and Missouri avenues. Part of this was vacant and part occupied by partially dismantled buildings. The property was occupied by the Bonus Army. A contract had previously been let for the demolishing of these old buildings, and the contractor was demanding possession. The demolition of the buildings was necessary to the extension of Constitution avenue and the further development of the Mall area. On May 16, 1932, the Treasury Department has awarded a contract for the completion of the Department of Agriculture Extensible Building, which included, as a part of its site the tract within Twelfth and Fourteenth and B and C streets southwest. In this area the Bonus Army had, without permission, seized and occupied some buildings and open areas, from which it was necessary to excavate earth to fill and level off Reservations A and B. Subcontracts had been let for the wrecking of the building, but the subcontractor could not proceed, and only limited excavation was possible. Request was made by the Treasury through the Superintendent of Police on July 20, that these buildings be evacuated. The Superintendent of Police reported that he had conferred with Commander Waters of the Bonus Army, who objected that he would not move his men into the open, and insisted that he intended to hold together a number of veterans in the District of Columbia to accomplish the object for which they had assembled, notwithstanding the adjournment of Congress.

There are statutes in the District of Columbia authorizing the summary removal by its officers of any person unlawfully or forcibly withholding the possession of Government property. On July 23 the Treasury Department served notice on the bonus army occupants of these several areas to vacate. On July 25 attorneys for the bonus army conferred with the Treasury officials, who granted a 24-hour extension of its order of vacation to July 26. On July 26 the attorney, Herbert S. Ward, and Capt. Doak Carter, one of the leaders of the bonus army, presented a proposal consisting merely of the statement that the veterans were willing to withdraw from the Government areas and retire to some private property which they were permitted to occupy, but that they required tentage and equipment, and demanded the assistance of the Treasury in procuring such equipment, with a view to their permanent encampment in the city. They requested what the Treasury had no power or authority to grant. This proposal was only a repetition of former statements made by Commander Waters, and nothing was accomplished. On July 26 a further letter was written by the Treasury to the Commissioners of the District, stating that the Treasury planned to begin work in the area between Third and Sixth streets and Pennsylvania and Missouri avenues on the morning of July 27, and requested that a sufficient detail of police be on hand to prevent any interference with the contractor or his workmen. On July 27 the proposed resumption of possession by the Treasury was again postponed to July 28, and on the morning of Thursday, July 28, a small portion of the old National Guard Armory on the space referred to, including an area about 25 yards in all directions surrounding it, was occupied by Treasury representatives under police protection. It was at this point that the serious disorder commenced.

Use of Troops.

4. The riot and the use of troops.

At the time of resuming possession of the small area on Pennsylvania avenue on July 28, it was not planned immediately to attempt to regain possession by the Government of any of the other tracts occupied by the bonus army. It was hoped that their evacuation could be gradually accomplished. The small number of bonus marchers occupying this building vacated it, forcible resistance having been offered only by two or three. No one was hurt by this movement, and the persons evicted were given ample opportunity to pack and leave. However, while this was taking place, speeches of an incendiary nature were being made at Camp Marks, an open area across the Anacostia River, on which a large bonus camp had been established. About noon, when the situation on Pennsylvania avenue was well in hand and entirely peaceful, the bonus marchers from Camp Marks started across the Anacostia River to the Pennsylvania avenue tract in large numbers by trucks and other means. They gathered in the street area near the property, then in the possession of the Treasury Department, which was being guarded by 75 policemen, and their number increased to 2,000 to 3,000. Suddenly, during the noon hour, the mob that had come from Camp Marks rushed the policemen and attacked them with bricks and rocks. Some of the police were felled with clubs. The police had revolvers, but had orders not to use them and did not do so. This attack finally subsided. Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene. The crowd of bonus marchers assembled at this point increased to numbers estimated at 4,000 to 6,000. With the bystanders, the crowd increased to an estimated number of nearly 20,000. The situation became more strained, and many of the bonus army were walking about with clubs and bricks in their hands. This continued until the middle of the afternoon, with continuous talk about attacking the police and driving them out. Some lawfully inclined veterans attempted to calm others, but made no impression. Finally the mob of bonus marchers again attacked the police with bricks, lumps of concrete and iron bars. Two of the bonus marchers were shot by police who had been set upon and were in danger of their lives. The entire mob became hostile and riotous. It was apparent that a pitched battle on a large scale might start at any moment. Practically the entire police force of the city were called from their posts and assembled at this point, but they were outnumbered 10 or 15 to 1. Notwithstanding the large number of irresponsible persons in the city, the rest of the city was stripped of police protection. Many of the policemen had been on duty all night. It was obvious that the situation was entirely out of the control of the police, and that when darkness arrived appalling scenes of disorder would follow, during which the rest of the city would be without substantial police protection, except for a few scout cars.

Meanwhile, as early as 12:30, Lieut. Keck, of the metropolitan police and aid to Gen. Crosby, Commissioner of the District, reported to the Commissioners that in his opinion and in the opinion of the assistant superintendent of police and two police inspectors, the situation was beyond control, and that bloodshed could only be averted by the presence of Federal troops. The Commissioners then stated that before calling for military aid they desired the opinion of Maj. Glassford, the chief of police. Maj. Glassford stated that since Waters, the commander of the bonus army, had lost control of his own men, the police could not control the situation any longer. Maj. Glassford, accompanied by Lieut. Keck, went to the office of the District Commissioners at 1 p. m. In response to questions by the District Commissioners he stated that the situation was out of his control and that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was asked the direct question whether he thought it was necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative. The Commissioners then notified the chief of staff of the army that the assistance of troops would be needed and requested that the necessary preparations might be made. Before asking for military assistance, Commissioners Reichelderfer and Crosby themselves then visited the area where the serious situation was apparent. After their return to the District building it was reported to them that further rioting had broken out and that a bonus marcher had been killed. Then it was decided to dispatch a communication to the President requesting the assistance of Federal troops to preserve law and order. A statement from the District Commissioners respecting this matter, dated August 2, 1932, is attached and marked exhibit 'C.' From this time until the troops arrived the situation steadily grew worse. There is no difference of oponiqn about the fact that the presence of troops was necessary to and did prevent further disorder and bloodshed. In their absence, further rioting would have occurred with further bloodshed among bonus marchers and police, and possibly innocent bystanders.

The troops arrived and, with the use of practically no weapons except tear gas, restored order and cleared the area and put an end to the disturbance.

Casualties in Rioting.

5. Casualties.

Two bonus marchers were killed in the disturbance. They were shot by police in self-defense, not by troops. A full investigation by a coroner's jury established that the police shot in necessary self-defense to save themselves from threatened fatal injury. After the troops arrived, no serious injuries to any one followed. A few of the troops were stoned and slightly injured, and one bonus marcher had his ear cut, but no other casualties were suffered after the troops came. Stories published in some quarters that the troops shot or seriously injured bonus marchers are utterly without foundation. The published reports that an infant child of a bonus marcher named Myers died as a result of tear gas are false. The records at the Gallinger Hospital show that the child died of intestinal trouble contracted and diagnosed before the riot.

6. Fires.

After the troops arrived, fire broke out among the old shacks occupied by bonus marchers on the Pennsylvania avenue tract, where the rioting occurred, and later at the big camp known as Camp Marks, on the Anacostia River, from which the bulk of the rioters had come to attack the police. The cause of the outbreak of the fire in the Pennsylvania avenue area is not known. The troops had no orders to set any fires. There was inflammable debris around, and the cause of the origin of the fire in the Pennsylvania avenue area is variously given as having been set by cigarettes or hot tear gas bombs. The evacuation of the large camp known as Camp Marks occurred later. At 7 o'clock in the evening the bonus marchers at that camp were notified that they would have to evacuate and that the troops would arrive. Sometime later the troops arrived at Camp Marks and were asked by the bonus marchers to delay an hour more to give the marchers time to evacuate comfortably. This request was granted. Many of the bonus marchers had already left, but the troops waited until the remainder packed up and marched out. While the troops were waiting fires set by the retiring bonus marchers broke out in a number of localities among the shacks and debris in the camp, and the conflagration became general. Such action as the troops took at either of these places with respect to fire was later to complete the work of the retiring bonus marchers by burning up the remainder of the debris. Photographs of soldiers setting fire to debris were evidently taken at this stage of the proceedings. The bonus marchers at these two sites, having evacuated their camps, then proceeded to leave the city. Camp Bartlett, on private property, was not disturbed by the troops, but was later evacuated by the bonus marchers.

7. Women and children.

The principal group of women and children in the Bonus Army was located in the Communist camp at Twelfth and Thirteenth streets southwest, which was not disturbed by the troops, but was voluntarily evacuated by the marchers. The Red Cross promptly offered and furnished assistance and transportation to all women and children in the Bonus Army, and to their men folks, and actually did furnish transportation to 221 women and 247 children. There is no evidence whatever that any women or children were injured or ill treated. The Veterans' Bureau, under authority of Congress, issued transportation to 4,344 veterans by railroad and 930 by automobile. Transportation by truck to their homes had been offered by the Secretary of War to all remaining bonus marchers, but was not furnished because the offer was refused.

Indictments Returned.

8. Grand jury.

Indictments have been returned by the grand jury of the District of Columbia against a number of the alleged rioters. The results of this effort to bring to justice the principals who incited this riot have been unsatisfactory. The reason is that on the day of the riot no detective officers were at Camp Marks, where originated the large movement to march over and attack the police. The function of having detectives and crime prevention agents in a position to observe and obtain evidence against those who at the last moment incited the riotous march and attack, belonged to the District police. The inspector in charge of that branch of the police service reports that he had no orders to place men for that purpose, and, on the contrary, on the day of the disturbance was directed to keep his men out of the area. Consequently, in the confusion and absence of this detective service, it has been impossible to identify and bring to justice some of the principal inciters of the disorder. It is always the case under such conditions that the radicals and disorderly elements who incite such action do so warily and sometimes fade from the scene when the trouble commences.

9. Conclusion — This experience demonstrates that it is intolerable that organized bodies of men having a grievance or demand upon the Government should be allowed to encamp in the city and attempt to live off the community like soldiers billeted in an enemy country. Attempts by such groups to intimidate or coerce Congress into granting their demands hurt rather than help their cause, and can only end as this one did, in riot and disorder. The available facts demonstrate that the bonus marchers who remained in the city after Congress adjourned represented no fair cross-section of ex-service men. Prior to the adjournment of Congress, law-abiding ex-service men dominated this gathering and preserved order. Afterward, the proportion of disorderly and criminal elements among these men steadily increased. Such of their leaders as were well-intentioned lost control over them entirely. It is appalling to think of the disorder and bloodshed that would have occurred if darkness had fallen on the city with the police hopelessly overwhelmed at the scene of the disturbance, and the balance of the community without police protection. The prompt use of the military to outnumber and overawe the disturbers prevented a calamity. The principal reason why the Federal Government was given exclusive jurisdiction over the Capital City was to enable it to preserve order at the seat of Government and to protect the Congress and other public officials from unlawful interference while in the discharge of their duties. The right peaceably to petition Congress for redress of alleged grievances does not include assemblage of disorderly thousands at the seat of Government for purposes of coercion.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM D. MITCHELL,
Attorney General.

after Congress adjourned represented no fair cross-section of former service men."

The Justice Department's report was made public at the White House, with a covering statement by President Hoover.

"In giving out this report, which shows the character of many of the persons assembled, the incidents and the character of the instigators of the riots," the President said, "I wish to state emphatically that the extraordinary proportion of criminal, Communist and nonveteran elements among the marchers, as shown by this report, should not be taken to reflect upon the many thousands of honest, law-abiding men who came to Washington with full right of presentation of their views to Congress. This better element and their leaders acted at all times to restrain crim eand violence, but after the adjournment of Congress a large portion of them returned to their homes and gradually these better elements lost control."

Mr. Mitchell's report summarily denies earlier public statements of Police Superintendent Glassford that he did not ask for troops on July 28. Dealing with developments about noon that day, the Attorney General says:

"The (District) Commissioners then stated that before calling for military aid they desired the opinion of Maj. Glassford, the chief of police. Maj. Glassford stated that since Waters, the commander of the bonus army, had lost control of his own men, the police could not control the situation any longer. Maj. Glassford, accompanied by Lieut. Keck, went to the office of the District Commissioners at 1 p. m. In response to questions by the District Commissioners, he stated that the situation was out of control and that the police could no longer hold the bonus marchers in check. He was asked the direct question whether he thought it necessary to secure the assistance of Federal troops, to which he replied in the affirmative."

Commissioners' Statement.

A detailed statement of the developments in the District Building immediately preceding the call for troops was presented to the Justice Department by the District Commissioners, under date of August 2. This statement is identified as "Exhibit C" in Mr. Mitchell's report, but it was not made public.

Incendiary speeches by radical elements at Camp Marks, in Anacostia, were described as the beginnings of the serious rioting. Treasury officials had regained possession of the desired building on lower Pennsylvania avenue before noon.

"No one was hurt in this movement and the persons evicted were given ample opportunity to pack and leave," says the hour by hour account of July 28.

"However, while this was taking place, speeches of an incendiary nature were being made at Camp Marks, an open area across the Anacostia River, on which a large bonus camp had been established. About noon, when the situation on Pennsylvania avenue was well in hand and entirely peaceful, the bonus marchers from Camp Marks started across the Anacostia River to the Pennsylvania avenue tract in large numbers, by trucks and other means."

Rioting Followed.

The serious rioting and bloodshed followed almost immediately.

"Notwithstanding the large number of irresponsible persons in the city, the rest of the city was stripped of police protection. Many of the policemen had been on duty all night. It was obvious that the situation was entirely out of the control of the police and that when darkness arrived appalling scenes of disorder would follow, during which the rest of the city would be without substantial police protection, except for a few scout cars."

The maximum number of bonus marchers in Washington was variously estimated. Mr. Mitchell said, between 8,000 and 15,000.

"Several thousand left shortly after Congress adjourned, but other groups came in, and at the time of the riot the best estimates are that there were from 6,000 to 8,000 bonus marchers in the city."

Prior to the riot, 341 members of the army had been arrested by the Metropolitan Police for a variety of offenses. On the day of the rioting and the day following, 21 others were taken in custody, making a total of 362 arrests in Washington.

51 Fingerprinted.

"Unfortunately, the police did not fingerprint all of these persons for identification, but 51 of them, including those arrested for disturbing the peace near the White House, were fingerprinted. Of these, 16, or approximately one-third, had no World War service record."

As the first contingents of the army began to arrive, muster rolls were established at the principal concentration camps. From these rolls, the Justice Department gathered 3,656 names, before the registry was discontinued by the bonus army commanders on June 12.

"These first 3,656 registered arrivals had been checked by the War Department and the Veterans' Bureau against their records of World War service men, with the result that of the total of 3,656, 877, or a little more than one-fourth, could not be identified in either department as having had World War service."

A second unpublished appendix to the Attorney General's report carried the detailed aphabetical list of the 1,0699 police records, with the time and place of their convictions.

In describing the menace of the bonus camps from the standpoint of health and sanitation, the report disclosed that "in one instance open latrines were found within 400 feet of the large wholesale and retail market at Fifth and Florida avenue northeast."

Quoting from a survey by a District health officer, the report continued:

"There was no time during the weeks that the bonus army was here when its presence, under the conditions that existed, was not an extreme menace to the public health, as soiled and vermin-infested bedding, exposed garbage, open latrines and inadequate facilities for the preparation of food and the disposition of waste inevitably leads to the development and spread of contagious and infectious diseases."

The insolence and arrogance of some of the bonus marchers was a constant charge upon the Washington police, the Attorney General said, while the gathering of evidence against the incendiary speakers was an added task for the Department of Justice operatives.

"Many reports have been received that they practically levied tribute on small merchants and intimidated housewives when their demands were refused. Some of them boarded running boards of cars driven by women and were disagreeable and insulting."

Conduct of Agitators.

In summarizing the provocative conduct of the identified Communist agitators, the report said:

"During the various disorders, including the final riot, persons identified as radicals and Communists were observed among the disturbers. There is irrefutable proof that a large body of Communists and radicals, some former service men and some not, were in the city as part of the bonus army, circulating among them and working diligently to incite them to disorder."

The Attorney General charges the Metropolitan police with laxity in gathering evidence against the provocative radicals in the various camps. Although a number of indictments have been returned by the grand jury, "the results of this effort to bring to justice the principals who incited this riot have been unsatisfactory," the report said.

"The reason is that on the day of the riot no detective officers were at Camp Marks, where originated the large movement to march over and attack the police.

"The function of having detectives and crime prevention agents in a position to observe and obtain evidence against those who at the last moment incited the riotous march and attack, belonged to the District police.

"The inspector in charge of that branch of the police service reports that he had no orders to place men for that purpose, and, on the contrary, on the day of the disturbance was directed to keep his men out of the area.

"Consequently, in the confusion and absence of this detective service, it has been impossible to identify and bring to justice some of the principal inciters of the disorder."

WATERS DENOUNCES BONUS ARMY REPORT

Charges Sent to Hoover Are Without Foundation, He Declares.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Walter W. Waters, commander of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces, in a statement issued tonight through an aid said the "charges" contained in Attorney General Mitchell's report on the bonus army were "absolutely without foundation in fact."

Waters expressed "regret" that the Attorney General's statement was issued at this time, saying, "It will only antagonize thousands of veterans who had begun to forget what took place in Washington."

His statement follows:

"Mr. Mitchell's charges are absolutely without foundation in fact. The grand jury failed to find they had any basis, since they returned only three minor indictments against men who could hardly be called representatives of the bonus army.

"The statement is only a rehash of all the charges that have been made and published by the administration since the eviction of the B. E. F. In these charges, they have failed to state both sides. It was Mr. Mitchell's job to furnish this information and he did the best he could.

"I regret that this statement was timed for the American Legion convention, as it will only antagonize thousands of veterans who had begun to forget what took place in Washington.

"I will not discuss the statement in detail at this time, but after careful study, a complete answer will be prepared and issued."

Waters announced today he had wired an appeal to the American Legion convention in Portland, Oreg., to go on record in favor of immediate payment of the bonus.

Waters said that he had been unable to obtain expenses to attend the convention "without obligating myself and my cause," and that he had wired instead to Commander Henry L. Stevens, of the American Legion, and to Representative Wright Patman.

Post Entertains Hillcrest Children at Circus Today

FRANK PORTILLO,
Veteran clown, catches a hopeful lad attempting to crawl under the tent flap at Hunt's Circus, which begins a week's stand here today. Orphans will be guests of The Post.

Performance to Be Given at Wisconsin Avenue and Yuma Street.

The circus came to town yesterday and established itself for a short stay at Wisconsin avenue and Yuma street northwest, to the obvious edification of several thousand young and old.

During the week the show—Hunt's Three-Ring Circus—will play at different locations in the city. At matinee performances daily orphans and other institutional children will be guests of The Post, with the Kiwanis Club and other civic groups furnishing transportation and peanuts.

Yesterday Dollie, the 20-year-old elephant, was the center of attraction. Dollie was literally showered with peanuts, cakes, candy and the like. She tossed her trunk constantly back and forth in gestures of good will and elicited many shouts of glee.

Though the show was only in process of getting ready for its metropolitan bow, many of the performers were seen practicing their "spots" and came in for much ogling.

Frank Portillo and Johnny O'Neil, clowns; Sunny Mund, slick-haired, and efficient ringmaster, Ginger, the fastest "finish" horse in the business, the snake charmer, the lions, all were seen and enjoyed.

The Hunt clan, which forms the nucleus of the show, was of course, on hand. Little Francine DeRiske, 3, is the baby of the Hunt kin, and Grandma Hunt, 78-year-old owner, is the dean. Francine's daddy, Grandma Hunt's son-in-law, heads the Aerial DeRiskes. He is one of the outstanding head-balancers in the circus world.

Many of the performers took time off to take a look at the Zoo here. Dr. William A. Mann, director, showed them around.

This morning at 10 o'clock the show will put on its entire performance at Mount Alto Veterans' Hospital for the entertainment of former service men under treatment there. In the afternoon approximately 70 children from Hillcrest, Washington city orphan asylum, will enjoy the delights of the circus as guests of The Post.

The Hunt show has retained its autonomy for 40 years, being in the family since 1892. It travels over the length and breadth of the land in huge motor lorries.

BOOTLEGGERS AGAIN ENTER ROBINS CASE

Members of Florida Liquor Ring Were Overheard Discussing Him.

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition agents sought yesterday to follow up information that Florida bootleggers had talked about Col. Raymond Robins several days before the dry leader disappeared while on his way to keep a White House appointment.

Officials in the Enforcement Bureau, aiding in the search for the 59-year-old prohibitionist, virtually had abandoned the belief that the Florida ring against which he was active had anything to do with the mystery. Then an informer gave them the new clew.

Overheard Discussing Robins.

Robins, while living at Brooksville, Fla., took part in a Federal inquiry which attempted to uncover a liquor conspiracy in Hernando County. A short while before the colonel disappeared a week ago Saturday, an informer told a special prohibition agent, men connected with the alleged conspiracy were heard talking about Robins.

The informer did not hear the full conversation, it was said. Officials here expressed the belief that even though the bootleggers might not have been plotting against Robins, they at least had not forgotten him.

Some Prohibition Bureau officers inclined to the belief that the Floridians merely had been reminiscing. They reiterated assertions that the Hernando County group did not operate on a national scale and never had shown any signs of violence to outsiders.

Still Blame Czarists.

These officers stuck to their theory that Russian czarists more likely were responsible or that Robins was suffering from amnesia. New York City agents were seeking additional information along this line, basing their belief on the colonel's recent work for recognition of the Soviet and reported threats by imperialists.

Prohibition agents in Chicago told headquarters here they were awaiting with interest the arrival of Dr. Daniel A. Poling, nationally known dry leader, who left Portland, Oreg., Saturday for the Windy City. Poling and Robins were close friends. Just what information Poling might have, Chicago agents said, was not yet known. Officials here thought it might have some connection with statements by two other of Robins' friends that they had seen him in Chicago last Thursday.

Robins Again Reported Seen by Chicagoans

Chicago, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Renewed reports that a man believed to be Raymond Robins, missing prohibition crusader and friend of President Hoover, has been seen in and about Chicago tonight sent investigators on new leads.

Mrs. Ruth Corey, her daughter-in-law, and a neighbor, Fred Fouts, notified authorities they saw a man resembling newspaper pictures of Robins in suburban Blue Island Friday.

Harold Ickes, a close friend of Robins, however, expressed doubt that the man was Robins. The Blue Island residents said the man stopped at the Corey home and inquired about a saloon.

"He said he believed the saloon was closed and I told him it was," Mrs. Corey said. "He said, 'Well, it won't be long until they all will be closed.'"

Ickes said Robins never engaged in private investigations of saloons or the liquor traffic. Two Chicago close friends reported they saw Robins in downtown Chicago Friday. They said they were positive the man they saw was Robins.

A close check of hotels and hospitals by investigators failed to reveal traces of him.

Country to Use Surplus Corn to Heat Buildings

Schuyler, Nebr., Sept. 11 (A.P.). Part of Colfax County's surplus corn crop will "go up in smoke."

The commissioners have decided to heat the courthouse and 62 school buildings under their jurisdiction with corn next winter.

They figure it will provide a ready market for the farmers' surplus crop and perhaps save the county some money at the same time. They estimate they can purchase corn, still on the cop, at $8 per ton. The courthouse uses about 30 tons of coal during winter at an approximate cost of $12 per ton.

$250,000 IN LIQUOR IS SEIZED ON YACHT

Ship Haul Called Largest Ever Made in New England; Secret Passage Found.

Boston, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A liquor seizure, described as the largest made in New England on a boat, took place in Dorchester Bay today as customs men uncovered 1,500 barrels and sacks of contraband in the 122-foot yacht Prudence and arrested its captain and crew of seven.

The vessel, registered to Mason Dilloway, of New York City, was elaborately equipped, with a radio in every room. The craft, customs men said, left the Bay of Fundy last Wednesday, stopped a day later at Booth Bay Harbor, Me., and put into Boston last night. It was about to depart for New York when customs men discovered the liquor.

At first a thorough search of the vessel revealed nothing. When the customs men had about given up examination of the craft, one of their number found a peculiar electric light fixture in the main saloon. When he touched it the bulb fell in his hand and disclosed two cords inside.

A tug at the cords, officers said, caused a panel, 8 by 5 feet, to open on a hatchway. The customs men entered the secret passage which, they said, led them to forward holds, where they found the liquor. They placed the value of the liquor at $250,000. A similar valuation was placed on the boat.

Capt. Norman McWilliams, of Boston, was held in $10,000 bond, while members of the crew were held in $5,000 each. The yacht was escorted to the appraisers' stores, where a heavy guard was placed over her cargo.

Chrysler Sees Dry Law Failure; Seeks Change

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, announced today he had accepted the general chairmanship of the crusaders' victory fund campaign in New York City, because he believed prohibition was a "failure." The crusaders are an antiprohibition organization.

He gave out a statement saying that he had accepted the post at the invitation of Fred G. Clark, of Cleveland, commander in chief of the crusaders, and that this organization appeared to be an "effective" medium for altering the prohibition laws.

Landlord's Son Killed By Woman After Row

Detroit, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—As the tragic climax of a quarrel over unpaid rent, Mrs. Ada McCune shot and killed Edward Saharuk, 12-year-old son of her landlord, today, the shotgun charge also wounding the slain boy's 17-year-old brother, John.

BROWNSVILLE FEELS RIO GRANDE'S FLOOD

Swollen River Gets Within Few Feet of City's Business Area.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The flooded Rio Grande, which had inundated thousands of acres of cultivated and uncultivated land upstream, today was slowly rising here at the southernmost tip of Texas.

On the American side, the swollen river stealthily crept toward levees, topped with emergency sand bags, and the edge of the water was within 20 or 30 feet of one part of the business section. The flood was not so close to Matamoros, Mexico, which is just across the stream.

Both civil and military authorities said they saw no reason for concern. Col. F. W. Glover, commanding officer at Fort Brown, said the river "would have to get up 4 feet more," before he would consider evacuation of the post.

Village Under 18 Inches.

The Weather Bureau said a rise of not more than two-tenths of a foot was expected the next three days.

Meanwhile, the worst situation was in the region of Sebastian and Lyford, in Willacy County, some 40 miles north of Brownsville and the river.

Flood waters from two breaks in the northern floodway, one of two major floodways serving the lower Rio Grande valley, had inundated Sebastian, a village, to an average depth of 18 inches, according to an attendant of one of the stores remaining open there.

15 Deaths Toll So Far.

A telephone operator said the waters gradually were approaching Lyford, about 10 miles north of Sebastian, and families were evacuating lowlands. Water was receding from Hidalgo, Tex., and Reynosa, Mexico, sister towns. Both had been virtually isolated.

The Mexican side of the Rio Grande, which is not well equipped with flood control systems, received most of the flood above Brownsville, other than the water carried by the valley's floodways. Vast areas there, largely brush land, still were under water.

From ten to fifteen deaths and millions in property damage have been charged to the flood.

7 Killed as Train Crashes Into Car

Man, Woman and 5 Children Victims of Oregon Crossing Accident.

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Seven persons were killed and two injured, one perhaps fatally, when a locomotive crashed into a motor car in the suburban Milwaukee district here today.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Lyon, of Milwaukee, Oreg.; their three children, Barbara, 11; Flora Lee, 6, and Betty Jean, 6, and two Japanese girls, Akiko Sasaki, 8, and her cousin, Kikuye Sasaki, 8, who were riding with the Lyon family. Two other of the Lyon children, Marian Ruth, 13, and Rose Lorraine, 3, were injured, the former so seriously she may die.

The accident occurred when Lyon, driving the car, swung to a crossing directly in the path of the oncoming locomotive after he had driven parallel to the tracks several miles.

HUTCHINSON PLANE SENDS S O S AT SEA

the Danish cruiser usually in East Greenland waters is at Reykjavik. Two other cruisers are far away off West Greenland and therefore of no use.

"Since the motorship of the famous explorer Knud Rasmussen unfortunately has left Greenland waters the search thus must be limited to motorboats and kayaks (tricky canoes), manned by Eskimos."

The City of Richmond, en route from New York to Scotland via Greenland, left Julianehaab, on the extreme southern tip of the Greenland coast, today to follow the coast line to Angmagsalik.

It was believed possible that the ship had exhausted its fuel within "shooting distance" of its destination.

George R. Hutchinson, of Baltimore, started with his wife, two little girls and a crew of four from New York on August 23. He flew an amphibian, the City of Richmond, and announced he was making a flight to Europe in easy stages. He stopped at St. John, New Brunswick; Port Menier, Anticosti Island, Hopedale, Labrador, Godthaab, Greenland and Julianehaab.

Before the hop from Labrador to Greenland, the Danish government, deeming a flight with a woman and children in that area as very risky, forbade Hutchinson to alight in Danish territory.

The aviator ignored the order and was fined the equivalent of $180 shortly after his arrival at Godthaab. The Danish government then requested him not to fly across the Greenland icecap, where rescue operations would be exceedingly difficult.

Hutchinson apparently complied with this request because he next flew to Julianehaab on the far southern tip, and announced he would take the coast line northward again to Angmagsalik. That was last week. Nothing more was heard until yesterday.

Massie Says Wife May Go to Hawaii

Will Return if Needed in Reported New Trial of Four Natives.

Philadelphia, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie said today that if the case against four Hawaiians, accused of attacking his wife, is reopened in Honolulu, Mrs. Massie "may return" to the island "if she is needed."

Lieut. Massie, who is attached to the U. S. S. New Mexico at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two enlisted naval men were sentenced to one hour in prison in connection with the killing a fifth alleged attacker. He said he would not return to the island, but expects to "stay right here."

Brazil Claims Gain In Rebel Territory

Government Announces Occupation of Several Sao Paulo Towns.

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—As the tenth week of military operations against rebel forces in the State of Sao Paulo opened, the government claimed almost the entire Mogyana district was within their grasp. Federal army leaders said their forces were menacing Campinas as a result of occupation of Amparo, Brumado and Pantaleao.

A government statement earlier today announced occupation by federal troops in the Mogymirim and Itapira sectors of the railway stations of Brumado and Pantaleao, 23 and 21 miles northward, respectively, from Campinas. It said the rebels had retreated to Amparo.

LETTERS TO "OTHER WOMAN" IN BERN MYSTERY DISCLOSED

self two months after his marriage to Jean Harlow, screen star, still was not apparent.

One letter, dated March 29, 1932, addressed to Miss Millette at the Algonquin Hotel, New York City, said:

"Dear Dorothy: I was very happy to get your letter of March 17.

"I have been desperately trying to get away from here for both vacation and change of scene for the last year, but so far it has been quite impossible.

"I read with great interest that you are contemplating a trip to San Francisco. Of course, I can not give you any advice, because you yourself can be the only person to know what is best. If you do go, I hope that it will be a happy change.

"I understand that the Plaza Hotel (where the baggage was left) is a fairly reasonable and attractive one.

"If you do change to any other place we will find some way of supplying you with funds in a manner convenient for you.

"My love and best wishes always.

"PAUL."

"P. S.—The Cliff Hotel is, I believe, quite fashionable, and not very expensive."

$160 Money Order.

A letter signed with the name of Irene Harrison, Bern's secretary, indicated the producer had a definite financial arrangement with Miss Millette.

The letter, also on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stationery, and addressed to Miss Millette at the Plaza Hotel here, follows:

"Dear Miss Millette:

"According to the arrangements agreed upon, I am inclosing a money order for $160, due on May 14.

"Mr. Bern has already left on his vacation, but I am at the office in the meantime, and if I can help you in any way at any time, please don't hesitate to ask me.

"I hope you are comfortably and happily settled in your new home.

"Sincerely yours,

"IRENE HARRISON,
"Secretary to Mr. Bern."

Wore Best of Apparel.

Contents of the trunk opened by police indicated Miss Millette was accustomed to supplying herself from the finest dress and lingerie shops.

Gowns, suits and shoes had been purchased in the most exclusive shops of New York and San Francisco. A dozen pairs of handmade shoes, heavy silk and satin pajamas and other apparel were found.

The handbag, bearing a few letters, receipted bills and the writing pad containing the single word, was found at a San Francisco checking station. It apparently was left there just before Miss Millette left aboard the steamer Delta King for Sacramento.

The following morning a watchman aboard the craft found Miss Millette's shoes and coat on the observation deck. In her stateroom were her hat, a handbag and a purse.

Whether she plunged to death in the river or made her way ashore unobserved when the vessel made stops has not been ascertained. Police have been watching the river for possible recovery of the body.

Bern Keeps Silence.

Los Angeles, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Silence as to the motive of the suicide a week ago of Paul Bern, motion picture producer, continued today after a long conference between his brother, Henry Bern, of New York, and his film widow, Jean Harlow.

A statement clearing up the strange case, with its complications of a mysterious woman in Paul Bern's past and a farewell not to Miss Harlow, speaking of a "great wrong" and Bern's "abject humiliation," was forecast last night by Attorney Mendel Silberberg. Henry Bern had promised a statement, Silberberg said, after he had talked again with Miss Harlow. They were together from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. today with the star's stepfather, Marino Bello, but when Bern emerged he stated he had "nothing to say."

Silberberg, as Miss Harlow's attorney, said Paul Bern's presumed last will is in a deposit box in a Los Angeles bank with other important papers, and that the box may be opened tomorrow. He said he could not venture a statement as to whether a solution of the problem will be found in the contents of the box.

RED TICKET HELPED BY 'INTELLECTUALS'

Educators, Writers and Artists' Group Asks Backing for Communists.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Nation's "intellectuals" were called upon today to mobilize behind the Communist party in protest against the "chaos, the appalling waste and the indescribable misery inherent in the present economic system."

A group of educators, writers, architects and artists, pledging their support to the Communist candidates, William Z. Foster and James W. Ford, issued a call for the formation of committees throughout the country to the same end.

The group included Lincoln Steffens, Winifred L. Chappell, executive secretary of the Methodist Federation of Social Service; Prof. Newton Arvin, of Smith College; Sidney Howard, author; Prof. Frederick L. Schuman, of the University of Chicago; Bruce Crawford, Norton, Va., editor; Sherwood Anderson, John Dos Passos, Theodore Dreiser, novelists; Adolf Dehn, Alfred Frueh, artists, and Maxwell Hyde, architect.

Matthew Josephson, biographer and critic and one of the originators of the movement, said he saw in it a leftward move among the country's intellectuals.

WIGGIN COMMITTEE ADJOURNS MEETING

Chairman Sees No Need for More Consultation on German Credit Now.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the German credit (standstill) committee of 1932, today announced that its next meeting, scheduled for October 1, had been adjourned indefinitely.

This marked the first time since the committee was formed to effect the gradual thawing out of approximately $1,200,000,000 of short-term credits advanced to Germany that it has been able to enjoy a breathing spell. Wiggin's statement indicated there was no need for a further consultation over Germany's credits at this time.

"As no matters of particular importance have been presented for discussion at the meeting, which, under the German credit agreement of 1932, was scheduled to take place on October 1," he said, "the various creditor committees, in accord with the German committee, have decided to adjourn the meeting, subject to call by the chairman at such later date as he may consider suitable, or at the request of any one of the committees."

The German creditors committee, known as the standstill committee, is composed of banking representatives of Germany, as the debtor, and of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Holland and six smaller European countries, as creditors.

The standstill agreement, which was designed to lift the pressure of world creditors on Germany until that nation could nurse its financial affairs back into something like normal vigor, was originally signed in February, 1931. On its expiration, last February, a new agreement was drawn to run until next February 23, and it was announced that despite her foreign exchange difficulties, Germany had contrived in the previous year to pay off about 10 per cent of her original indebtedness.

This left a balance of $1,275,000,000 of short term credits still tied up in Germany seven months ago. Some repayment has been made since then, but the amount has been small.

Wiggin, as chairman of the international committee, also represents 101 American banks which participated in the extension of short term credits to Germany.

RELIEF CONFEREES TO MEET THURSDAY

Hoover and Baker to Speak at Opening Session at White House.

(Associated Press.)

A national assembly of welfare and relief workers to lay plans for the coming months will open at the White House Thursday with an address by President Hoover and a reply by Newton D. Baker.

The President will speak on "Citizens' Responsibility for Human Welfare." The former Secretary of War will reply as chairman of the national citizens' committee of the welfare and relief mobilization of 1932.

After the opening ceremonies at the White House, the one-day conference will conclude its sessions at a hotel.

The Association of Community Chests and Councils gave as the meeting's object "to discuss ways of coordinating social service resources and of supporting communities in their money raising campaigns to meet the need of the next twelve months."

Many Expected to Attend.

Baker in a statement said:

"It is hoped that this conference will stimulate communities in attacking their welfare and relief problems and so encourage them that the funds needed to carry on necessary social service projects will be raised. If each community can solve its own welfare and relief needs this winter, it will go a long way toward restoring national confidence and aiding business recovery."

He added that the conference, sponsored by 28 national social service agencies united in the mobilization and the national citizens' committee, is expected to be attended by "statesmen, executives in the business world and fields of social service from every State."

Baker said "the campaign we are now engaged in requires * * * the united action of every citizen" and predicted that from the mobilization would come authoritative information as to food, needs, number out of work, those ill and unable to pay for medical attention, those needing to have their morale and courage strengthened and guidance of jobless youths.

Points Out Need of Aid.

"It is the feeling of these united social service forces," he said, "that with this faithful presentation of facts, the problems which are sapping the lifeblood of our citizens will be brought home to the American people in such a manner that they will see the importance of turning defeat into voctory by seeing that the needs of the suffering and destitute are met and the necessary stabilizing social forces kept intact until a turning point in this year of depression shall be reached."

Among those listed as speakers are: Atlee Pomerene, Reconstruction Corporation chairman; Walter S. Gifford, former chairman of the committee on unemployment relief; Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the emergency unemployment relief committee of New York; Frederic R. Kellogg, of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, Morristown, N. J.; C. M. Bookman, executive secretary of the Community Chest of Cincinnati and former president of the National Council of Social Work; Louis E. Kirstein, president of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies, Boston; Fred Hoke, of the Indianapolis Community Chests; Joseph L. Scott, Los Angeles Community Chests, and J. Herbert Case, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and president of the Association of Community Chests and Councils.

8 STATES WILL HOLD PRIMARY THIS WEEK

Smith and former Senator Cole L. Blease.

On the following Tuesday, primary elections will be concluded and the way cleared for the Nation to express its will on November 8. Wisconsin and Massachusetts hold their primaries September 20 with New York nominating convention on the same day. Registrations of voters generally have been reported exceptionally large.

In tomorrow's Arizona primaries, Senator Hayden is seeking the Democratic nomination, while Noval Smith appears likely to be his Republican opponent. Senator Broussard is opposed for Louisiana's Democratic nomination by Representative Overton, who is supported by Senator Huey Long.

Senator Jones Opposed.

The Veteran Senator Jones, of Washington, is challenged for the Republican nomination by Adam Beeler, and the Democratic contestants are Stephen F. Chadwick and Edwin J. Brown.

A brisk campaign has been conducted in Colorado for the senatorial nominations of both parties. Former Senator Alva Adams and John T. Barnett are the Democratic contenders, and Nate Warren and Karl C. Schuyler are the Republicans.

In Vermont Senator Dale has no opposition for renomination. In New Hampshire, Senator Moses has one opponent who has asked voters to write in his name on the ticket.

Michigan's primaries for selection of candidates for seventeen House seats, a governor and other State offices have been made more interesting by the campaigns of former Representatives Cramton and Hudson, prohibitionists, to make comebacks after 1930 defeats by antiprohibitionists.

Howes Says Crisis Charge Admitted

Interprets White's Talk as Putting Blame on Influx of Foreign Bonds.

(Associated Press.)

W. W. Howes, Democratic national committeeman from South Dakota, said in a statement yesterday that Robe Carl White, Assistant Secretary of Labor, "admits the charge of the Democrats that the orgy of speculation and the flooding of the country with worthless foreign securities were largely responsible for the depression."

Howes' statement, issued by the Democratic national committee, drew this conclusion from White's speech at Wellesley, Mass., last Friday, and added:

"Mr. White * * * declared * * * that 'the flooding of this country with foreign bonds and securities was probably the final straw that broke the camel's back * * *' There was not anything of this sort in President Hoover's acceptance speech."

MAINE DEMOCRATS EXPRESS OPTIMISM

Party Has Full Slate of Candidates for First Time in Many Years.

Portland, Me., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—With the eyes of the Nation upon it, Maine will get the political starter's gun tomorrow in the first test of strength in the country between the major parties.

Antedating the general presidential canvass by almost two months, tomorrow's State election was termed by Senator George H. Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, in a campaign address as "critically influential" in the vote of the Nation in November.

A governor, three members of Congress, State legislative representatives, senators and county officials will be chosen. The polls, opening from 6 a. m. to 10 a. m (Eastern standard time) on option of communities, automatically close at 7 p. m.

For the first time in years, Democrats put forward a full slate of candidates in a campaign absent of any clear-cut State issues, but sharply waged upon national prohibition in tthe congressional contests.

Rivals' Conflicting Claims.

Louis J. Brann, the Democratic nominee for governor, in his only prediction of the campaign, saw victory for his party by a 20,000-vote margin. Republican State Chairman Daniel F. Field forecast a majority "in excess of 25,000" for Burleigh Martin, Republican gubernatorial candidate.

The 1928 election, which Republican leaders declared could be taken as "no criterion," resulted in Republican victory in the gubernatorial contest by 83,000 votes.

The importance of the election as a factor in influencing voters of other States was seen in the concentration of ace speakers of both parties in Maine during the closing days of the campaign. Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, wound up the Republican campaign last night in an address here. Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Boston, concluded the Democratic drive Friday night.

Democratic speakers aggressively attacked the administration record during the economic crisis as calling for a needed change.

Dry Issue Sharply Drawn.

Republican leaders, on the other hand, declared that the administration of the Nation and State offered no criticism on the part of the people and that Democratic contentions were not based on facts.

The prohibition issue was sharply drawn between the congressional aspirants.

The Democratic nominees—Joseph E. F. Connolly, in the First District, Edward C. Moran, jr., in the second, and John G. Utterback in the third—all stood for outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Their opponents were avowedly dry, Representatives Carroll L. Beedy, of Portland, and John E. Nelson, of Augusta, seeking reelection, having asserted the people had given no mandate for a change. Former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, who defeated Representative Donald F. Snow in the primary election, opposed Utterback in the Third District.

The electorate also will vote on a proposed increase in the gasoline tax from 4 to 5 cents. In the face of much opposition, candidates for office have left the subject severely alone. The same proposal was quashed in a referendum two years ago.

LEGALITY OF REPEAL PLANS QUESTIONED

State Conventions' Proposal Attacked by Methodist Board Counsel.

(United Press.)

Prohibitionists have evolved a new point of attack in their campaign against repeal of the eighteenth amendment, based on legal grounds, it was revealed here last night.

Edward S. Dunford, counsel of the Antisaloon League, in an opinion for the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, raises 22 legal questions involving the proposal for State conventions to act on repeal. Both Republican and Democratic platforms suggested this method.

The Constitution authorizes the State convention method of action on amendments, but it never has been used. Hitherto all constitutional amendments have been acted upon by legislatures.

Sees Corruption Possible.

"The fact that ordinary election laws do not apply suggests infinite possibilities of corruption," the board said.

"The whole proposal, as is the case with almost all other proposals connected with the antiprohibition movement, gives evidence of an astonishing immaturity of thinking. The American people will do well to 'stop, look and listen.'"

Dunford points out that the Constitution provides no machinery for such State conventions. He asks who is to call them—Congress, State Legislatures or the people, and shall they be elected at large or by districts?

If the legislature is to call them and provide for expenses, he suggests that many States would not desire at this time to pay for them. Dunford also raised the question as to whether a governor could veto a legislative call for such a convention.

Huge Expenditures.

"The Federal corrupt practices act would not apply to expenditures made to influence delegates to a ratifying convention," the board's statement said. "Enormous sums undoubtedly would be used by national organizations, with infinite possibilities of corruption."

Dunford raised the question as to whether a second convention could be called, if the first refused to ratify, and whether there is any limit to the number of conventions that might be called.

He asked further how the authority of a convention could be revoked if it failed to agree, as there is no law fixing the tenure of delegates to such a convention.

Two of the schooners, which anchored in the roads, broke their chains but little damage was suffered and it was believed they would be refloated easily. One of the stranded schooners, the Clara F., was a total loss.

PLAN FOR INDUSTRY BOOM IS ANNOUNCED

Head of White House Conference Group Tells of Rehabilitation Drive.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee on industrial rehabilitation, one of the groups set up at the recent White House business conference, announced plans yesterday for an extensive organization to accomplish his committee's assignment.

Robertson, who is chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., said he would announce the membership of his committee next week.

Its first step, he announced, will be to organize subcommittees in each of the Federal Reserve districts, each with a chairman and vice chairman.

Robertson's plan provides that these officials, in turn, organize smaller committees within the boundaries of the various industrial areas in the reserve districts.

The committee will point out to factory owners, Robertson said, that run-down machinery can best be replaced now because financial and credit conditions are improved and purchase and installation costs for machinery are low.

STAND ON REICH ARMS PLEA IS DEFENDED BY HERRIOT

of the first battle of the Marne, the American Ambassador expressed the hope the memorial might inspire international collaboration in every field, material and moral.

The monument—a giant figure of a woman supporting a wounded soldier—was a return gift for the Statue of Liberty, which France gave the United States.

Premier Herriot said France was trying to associate herself "in the most useful way in the remarkable initiative" of President Hoover in seeking disarmament. He lauded Secretary of State Stimson's foreign relations council speech of August 8.

France is trying hard to understand the problems of the United States, he declared, asking for a reciprocal attempt by Americans.

The monument was turned over to the French people by John Ridgely Carter, former American Minister and diplomat in various European and South American capitals.

Ambassador Edge asked the French nation to accept the monument as "a symbol of the undying amity, the firm and constant friendship, which forever link the United States and France."

It would be a permanent reminder, he said that "no deed moves the American people more deeply in its sympathies and more definitely to action than the sight of a nation freeing its territory, its hearth, its homeland, of foreign intrusion."

Pointing out that the idea of the monument originated in 1917 before the United States "took its place in the battle line," Mr. Edge said it was "visible evidence that mass opinion will invariably align itself behind a cause that is just and a principle that is right, thereby commanding the course of governments."

"This true fact against the proof of an American memorial in France celebrating a glorious feat of French arms can not be rejected," he said. "The guarantees which it postulates should not be ignored."

Before the ceremony at the 65-foot-high monument on the battlefield, M. Paul-Boncour presided at a luncheon where a number of distinguished Frenchmen made speeches.

The town of Meaux and the scene of ceremony, 30 miles from Paris, were bedecked with banners in honor of the American visitors.

Four million Americans contributed several thousand dollars to complete the monument, designed by Frederick MacMonnies and executed by Edmondo Quattrocchi upon a pedestal designed by Thomas Hastings. Thomas W. Lamont, of New York, was chairman of the American committee which arranged for the gift.

Saint Gaudens, France, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A bronze memorial to the American sculptor, Augustus Saint Gaudens, was unveiled here today with Robert Scotten, secretary to the American Embassy, representing the United States. Saint Gaudens' ancestors lived here.

ECONOMIC PARLEY CALLED BY FRANCE

Paris, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A step toward the world economic conference is evinced in a call for a national conference of industry and agriculture scheduled to open here October 10.

Senator Fernand Chapsal, former minister and president of tariff committee of the Senate, will act as president of the conference, which has been divided into five sections, each presided over by such important men as Louis Rollin, former minister of commerce, and president of the Commerce Commission of the Chamber of Deputies; Henri Le Mire, deputy, and president of the French Industrial and Agricultural Association; Rene Duchemin, president of the National Confederation of French Producers, and the Marquis De Vogue, president of the Agricultural Society of France.

GOVERNORS DECLARE FOR TARIFF REVISION

Farmer Debt Moratoriums Also Urged at Parley in Midwest.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Specific proposals for farm relief, representatives of nine Midwestern states today declared themselves in favor of tariff revision, sound currency expansion, moratoriums on farmer debts and an orderly marketing program.

The many-sided relief program was accompanied by a declaration that restoration of the buying power of agriculture would go far toward restoring general prosperity in the Nation and that no solution can be had of the farm problem without readjustment of tariffs.

The recommendations were addressed to the President and Congress.

The conference, called during the Midwestern farm "strike," was attended by the Governors of North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Minnesota and emissaries of the Governors of Wisconsin, Oklahoma, Ohio, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Complications Seen.

To demands of leaders of the nonselling movement for an embargo on marketing, the governors' conference replied that such a move would be without legal precedent, would result in many complications and that the results expected from it could be accomplished by the farmers themselves through lawful voluntary cooperation.

In a 1,000-word statement issued, the conferees suggested:

"That the tariff system be revised to give equality of protection to agricultural products and to lessen the burden of foreign competition with our farm products, including fats and oils.

"That a sound expansion of currency would do justice between debtors and creditors and enhance commodity prices.

"That the national agricultural credit system should be reorganized so as to refinance the American farmer at lower rate of interest.

"That the Reconstruction Finance Corporation immediately extend its credit facilities to the American farmer.

"That surplus control legislation should elevate the domestic price level of American products."

The conference, called by Gov. Warren E. Green of South Dakota was an outgrowth of the marketing strike sponsored by the National Farmers Holiday Association, which resulted in highway picketing and some violence in western Iowa and adjacent counties along the Missouri River.

Opening here Friday, the conference heard demands from 'strike' leaders for State embargoes on the sale of farm commodities for less than production costs, a moratorium on farm and chattel mortgage foreclosures and a special session of Congress to establish an embargo on the importation of farm products into the United States.

Governors' Statement.

The governors' statement recommended:

"That the President forthwith direct all administrative officers in charge of the Department of Agriculture, Federal Reserve Banks, Federal Farm Land Banks, Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, national banks and all other Federal-controlled credit agencies to refrain from foreclosures on farm property until Congress assembles to act upon the matter.

"That the President then recommend to Congress that it authorize and direct all Federal officers and agencies referred to above to refrain from foreclosures for a period of one year or until an effective plan is worked out so that during this period of extremely depressed prices the property of farmers who have an equity in it may be preserved to them.

"That the United States Department of Agriculture refrain from any attempts to collect feed and seed loans during this emergency period and until such times as farmers' income can be restored to a basis that will enable them to pay.

Foreclosure Holiday Asked.

"That owners of mortgages on farm property refrain during this emergency period from foreclosure or eviction proceedings against distressed farmers for nonpayment of interest or taxes, unless the farmer fails or refuses to pay what is equal to the landlords share of the produce of the farm.

"In the event that such owners of farm mortgages fail to extend reasonable leniency to distressed farmers, we recommend that appropriate State legislation for their protection be enacted."

Leaders of the holiday movement, who convened here yesterday also, are now perfecting plans for extending the nonselling movement, which they hope will be inaugurated in thirteen States September 21. Association officers will meet here September 18 to plan a marketing organization.

Two Courts Open Session Today.

Two courts will be in session in Alexandria today. The Circuit Court, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, presiding, will convene at 10 o'clock and the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, will convene at 11 o'clock.

GERMANY RECEIVES FRENCH ARMS REPLY

Official Comment Withheld, However; Reich Plea Is Believed Refused.

Berlin, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The French reply to Germany's recent aide memoire demanding arms equality was handed today to the foreign minister, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, by the French Ambassador, Francois Poncet, but official comment was withheld.

In authoritative quarters, however, there was a tendency to emphasize that "Germany's claims to equality are so well braced that she can pursue her previously announced policy with a clear conscience."

This was generally interpreted to intimate that Germany would absent herself from the disarmamanet conference unless the French reply leaves a door open to settle Germany's claims before the convocation of the adjourned conference.

As summarized by Baron von Neurath last week, the German document demanded the right to security through equality in armaments.

The French reply is understood to say that Germany's arms were fixed by the Versailles treaty and that Germany and France alone can not change that agreement.

Most of the press has unreservedly supported the government's policy and denounced what was termed a French attempt to refer the issue to the League of Nations. The position here was that the matter was no affair of all the members of the league, but only of those powers which have taken a leading part in "armament discriminations" against Germany.

Rome, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The reported categorical rejection by France of German armament claims has aroused no expressions of surprise in Italian government circles.

When Premier Mussolini discussed with the German Ambassador the German aide memoire demanding equality, the Italian view was given out as believing that Germany's stand was well founded juridically, but that the matter should be presented to the disarmament conference, whose decisions are still in abeyance.

REICHSTAG TO STUDY VON PAPEN PROGRAM

Debate to Be Permitted in Effort to Get Approval by Majority.

Berlin, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The junker government of Chancellor Franz von Papen will give the Reichstag a chance to debate Germany's internal political situation.

An official statement tonight declared that those in power would not shut off discussion of the government's reconstruction program by "premature dissolution."

On the contrary, the Von Papen cabinet announced it wished to neglect no opportunity to find a Reichstag majority for its program.

This program contemplates relief through tax refunds and other measures, and risks some $500,000,000 on the return of prosperity.

Until today's statement there appeared only two possible ways of averting dissolution of the Reichstag immediately after it reconvenes on Monday. These were the elimination of Chancellor Franz von Papen, or a tacit toleration on the part of the Centrist-Nazi coalition, which controls the lawmakers.

The chancellor will have the power of dissolution by virtue of a decree signed in blank by President von Hindenburg. The president agreed, however, to meet the presidium of the Reichstag, headed by the Nazi, Wilhelm Goering, tomorrow, after the government makes its statement of policy.

On this point today's government statement said:

"The impression is erroneous that the government wishes to prevent political debate in the Reichstag by premature dissolution. On the contrary, the government looked forward to such debate with great interest because it believed the debate will furnish useful clarification of the situation for the nation, and because it wishes to neglect no opportunity to find a Reichstag majority for its program."

Villard Escapes In Disaster.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Henry Hilgard Villard, son of Oswald Garrison Villard, the editor, advised his father in a cablegram tonight that he had escaped unscathed in the Changchun-Harbin train disaster in Manchuria.

"Lost suit cases, train robbery; saved money, passport; proceeding Manchuli; arrive Saturday," said the cablegram received by Mr. Villard at Watertown, Conn. "No cause for worry."

The younger Villard was traveling toward England to continue his studies at Cambridge. His cablegram was dated Changchun.

Business Leaders Will Study Debts

Sloan Announces Formation of Group to Seek Solution.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Formation of a national committee of business men, farm and labor leaders to consider the question of international debts "as a business problem" was announced today by Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation.

Mr. Sloan is temporary chairman of the "committee for consideration of intergovernmental debts." Twelve men of national prominence have agreed to serve as vice chairmen. Several thousand "key men" in various sections of the country will be invited to join.

ECONOMISTS ADVISE NEW DEAL ON POWER

37 Sign Demand for More Regulation and Government-Owned Plants.

(Associated Press.)

Thirty-seven economists, teachers and writers agreed in a pamphlet issued yesterday by the National Popular Government League that regulation of public utilities should be increased and Government-owned plants placed in competition with those operated by private concerns.

The pamphlets summarized the "power records of Hoover and Roosevelt" and was prepared by Judson King, executive secretary of the league. It included a statement written and signed by Charles A. Beard, political scientist and historian, saying:

"We now know regulation as practiced is not enough. It permits unsound inflation and high rates and leaves the country confronted by a virtual monopoly too powerful for commission control.

Alternative Courses.

"There are two courses open to us:

"1—We may drift in the channels cut for us by interested promoters of private utility companies, whose methods are well known;

"2. We may adopt a program of positive action, which means the stiffening of regulation on the basis of prudent investment and fair return; and the extension of public competition, demonstrably the most effective regulatory force yet devised."

Among the other signers of this statement were Iraton R. Barnes, professor of economics at Yale; Frank H. Dixon and Frank A. Fetter, of Princeton; George S. Counts and J. Russell Smith, of Columbia; Felix Frankfurter, of Harvard; A. R. Hatton, of Northwestern University; Dr. H. S. Person, managing director of the Taylor Society; George Soule, of the New Republic; Arthur Powell Davis, former director and chief engineer of the reclamation service.

Candidates' Policies Forecast.

King forecast in the pamphlet that President Hoover would "continue to oppose public plants and the Norris Muscle Shoals bill would receive a third veto, insist on a treaty with Canada unfavorable to New York's St. Lawrence power projects, lease remaining great power sites to private interests for 50 years, insure an uncertain power commission, continue hostility to the power investigation, support inadequate laws to regulate holding companies, and influence the Nation's power policy toward control by private interests for the indefinite future."

Roosevelt, King said, would "continue in Washington the power policies he has fought for in Albany, sign the Norris Muscle Shoals bill with transmission lines, conserve water power resources, negotiate a Canadian treaty for power projects, favor public plants necessary to secure cheap rates, appoint public-minded commissioners, fight for effective laws to control holding companies, check invasion of Federal courts into State affairs, and help determine the Nation's future power policy in the public interest."

Zwirko, Polish Airmen, And Passenger Killed

Warsaw, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Frank Zwirko, winner of the recent around-Europe flight and idol of Poland's younger generation, and a passenger were killed in an airplane crash in Czechish Silesia today.

The flier was en route to Prague to take part in an airfest. His plane apparently had been caught in a storm. With him was the aviation engineer, M. Wigura, who constructed the plane. Both were dead when picked up.

RELIGION DESCRIBED AS UPLIFTING FORCE

Dr. E. E. Richardson Gives Talk at Congress Heights Baptist Church.

"It is religion in its higher aspects that has been the uplifting and ennobling force in the world," declared the Rev. Dr. Edward E. Richardson, in his sermon yesterday morning at Congress Heights Baptist Church.

"It is its power that has transformed life and instilled into it those qualities that raise it to its highest levels. The expressions addressed to Christians that they are the 'salt of the earth' and 'the light of the world' are indicative of the great truth that those who have consistently followed Christ have helped to give to men that which has made them better and made life worth living. Without that which true religion gives, the journey of life is of only transitory meaning. With it the best in life is possible and its journey is fraught with heavenly worth."

"Life's Journey" was the topic of Dr. Richardson's sermon. He took his text from the twenty-ninth verse of the tenth chapter of the Book of Numbers, "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

Dr. Richardson said in part:

"The significance of these words for the present lies in the fact that there is a close relation between that which is national and that which is individual. The immediate reference here was to Israel as a Nation. If the one to whom the invitation was addressed would follow Israel in its aspirations and hopes it would be to the benefit of the one to whom such privilege was accorded. The group would do the individual good and this is because man is a race and there follows all that the racial relation implies. There are few things more significant in life than the fact of the racial relation as it qualifies all experience, and gives to it much of its worthwhile character.

"Why would the accompanying of the Israelites by Moses' father-in-law be to his good? The reason for Moses' answer is plain. It was because he was convinced that they were better and had higher standards of life. To so follow meant, however, much of sacrifice. The one who did this must leave his accustomed mode of life. He must give up many old associations. There is a difference between the Christian life and that which is outside. If Hobab was to go along with Moses he must become an Israelite in spirit as well as in outward form. To consort with the journeying people and not be one of them in ideals and life would be a mockery and end in disaster. What was necessary was a spiritual relation that would make for real good to the one who would enter into the relation. So it is in life. The one who would follow the practices of religion to his advantage must enter into it with a whole-hearted devotion."

PASTOR HOLDS MAN HAS SPECIFIC DUTY

Must Support and Defend Spiritual Qualities of Life, He Asserts.

"In the progress of events is man a mere spectator?" asked the Rev. J. J. Rives, pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, in his sermon yesterday morning.

Taking his text from the seventeenth verse of the fifth chapter of the Book of St. John, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work," Mr. Rives said, in part:

"Are we where the flood has carried us or do we help to direct the course of the stream?

"Jesus said his Father is a worker and He Himself a worker. True workmanship is creatorship. In the beginning God was not the victim of darkness and chaos, but he was the master, and out of it all came light, beauty and order. The crown of his creative work is man. Since man embodies the image of God and bears His spirit he, too, must be a worker. He goes out into a world of raw material and brings into existence through his creative genius an ideal order.

Capacity of Idealization.

"What is the method of this progress? First comes the capacity of idealization. One of the most remarkable things about man is his ability to see things that do not yet exist in material form. Were it not for this we should never have had progress in the sense of enrichment of experience. It is God's power to see the possibilities in us which causes Him to be patient and forgiving to us. Then comes the application of skill whereby the ideal is brought to play upon raw material and the finished product stands forth.

"Paul says that man is God's poem. We are His workmanship in a larger sense than mere architecture. We embody His thoughts, the warmth of His love, the glory of His image which is spiritual. As His creatures and His coworkers we are sent out to make a poem of life, life individual and in its social aspects.

Responsibilities of Man.

"This means certain specific responsibilities. First of all, if I want to live in a city where conditions are moral, safe and desirable, then it is up to me to help make such a city. If my church is to be effective and dynamic it will be so only as I invest my life in it. We are workers together with God in creating a world desirable and profitable to live in. Again, if I want my children to have a fair chance in a moral atmosphere to reach the highest destiny of which they are capable then I must do all I can to conserve and to enrich the spiritual heritage handed down to me by my fathers.

"'My father worketh hitherto and I work,' and so do I, and so do you by sympathetic attitude, by active cooperation, by financial support and by defense of all those rare spiritual qualities that make life worth while."

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S TRIP.

The outcome of the Presidential campaign may be determined by the course of Gov. Roosevelt's tour of the West, which begins today. He is undertaking the task of winning over disaffected Republicans and independents, who are supposed to number millions. With the aid of these discontented groups it is hoped that the Democratic ticket will capture many western States, in spite of improved business conditions and the gratifying development of the reconstruction program.

Gov. Roosevelt's speech at Columbus sounded the keynote of criticism of the Hoover administration. It was calculated to appeal to the disaffected and the unemployed. If the election were to hinge solely upon the fact that American business collapsed during a Republican administration and that the administration neither foresaw the crash nor prevented unemployment, then Mr. Hoover would be doomed to defeat, without regard to Gov. Roosevelt's program. Many observers are convinced that public resentment against the Hoover administration is so intense that nothing can save it. They picture this resentment as something which is deaf to reason, and therefore not likely to be affected by the argument that Mr. Hoover is executing a reconstruction program that has already made better times, while Gov. Roosevelt has proposed no reconstruction program.

It is hardly to be expected, however, that Gov. Roosevelt will confine his speeches in sixteen States to the one subject of Republican responsibility for the depression. The people wish to know how to get out of the depression. Some of them feel the influence of better times, and are anxious to take advantage of the upward turn. Republicans are urging that it is unwise to make a change now, when conditions are improving. The audiences to be addressed by Gov. Roosevelt will probably expect him to outline in some detail what plans he will propose if elected President. If he should do so, his plans will be compared with the Hoover program, and upon the verdict may turn the election.

One of the difficulties which Gov. Roosevelt would encounter if he should make a frontal attack upon the Hoover reconstruction program lies in the fact that Democrats co-operated in formulating that program and enacting it into law, and are now engaged in executing it. Democrats occupy key places in the great reconstruction agencies. They regard the reconstruction program as a nonpartisan national campaign against adversity, which if successful will benefit Democrats as much as Republicans. They probably would take offense at an attack upon this program, and would be impatient if Gov. Roosevelt should suggest an entirely new method of dealing with the depression and unemployment. Those Democrats who co-operated in formulating the Government program had before them all imaginable alternatives. They would raise the point that no new program, however brilliant, could run the gantlet of Congress and come into operation in less than a year, while the present program is well under way and has the advantage of combined Republican and Democratic support.

Gov. Roosevelt, however, can not be expected to give his whole-hearted approval to the reconstruction program bearing Mr. Hoover's name. His party platform not only condemns President Hoover for not averting the depression, but denounces his leadership. Gov. Roosevelt could not accept the Hoover program and continue to denounce the "bankruptcy" of Republican leadership. Therefore he may be expected to expose the flaws in the Hoover program and suggest improvements of his own. When this stage of his addresses is reached his words will be doubly scanned in order to take his measure as a President.

TO SAVE $500,000,000.

President Hoover has requested the Director of the Budget to reduce the estimated expenditures for the next fiscal year $500,000,000 below the total of the current budget. His letter to department heads inaugurates an economy program even more drastic than that which was put into effect this year. The President is apparently determined to trim Government expenditures to the lowest possible figure as a means of relieving distressed taxpayers in this period of hard times.

Details of this program remain to be worked out. The President has merely set the goal. It remains for the Budget Bureau and the heads of governmental agencies to devise ways and means of reaching it. No effort will be made to return to the budget of any previous year, but every item will be scrutinized for possible reductions.

This year President Hoover cut the budget estimates $360,000,000 below the actual appropriations for the fiscal year 1932. Congress made further reductions, and passed an economy act that has resulted in considerable saving. The President is not fully satisfied with that achievement. His determination to reduce Federal expenditures by $500,000,000 more is a challenge to Congress to keep the budget at the lowest possible figure consistent with efficiency.

One major source of economy will be a reduction in Government building. President Hoover thinks that jobs will be more plentiful next year, and that the Government will not find it necessary to carry on such extensive building activities to relieve the unemployed. The construction program is now accelerated to the maximum. Obviously the Government can not continue building on such a large scale without putting up unnecessary structures and throwing an unwarranted burden on taxpayers.

Indications are that another source of saving will be reduction of the payments to veterans who have no disability resulting from the war. Unfortunately these savings can not be made in the budget estimates, because a change in the law is necessary to stop this extravagance. But President Hoover intimates that he will lay the situation before Congress, and recommend changes that will put veterans' relief once more on a sound basis.

Consolidation of Government bureaus and independent offices is a third major economy problem. Here, too, sweeping changes may be recommended. The President has already made a number of consolidations under the limited authority granted him by Congress. These economies will be in addition to the reduction in the budget estimates which are now in the course of preparation.

If Congress is disposed to cooperate, this drastic program will give substantial relief to taxpayers. It will take some time, of course, before this policy can be translated into lower taxes, but if the business upturn continues, the administration should soon be able to wipe out some of the debt that has accumulated during the depression and to ease the burden on taxpayers at the same time.

LOWER STREET CAR FARES.

Officials of the Capital Traction Company have informed the Public Utilities Commission that they would be glad to discuss the reduction of street car fares for the downtown area. All of the traction and bus companies operating within the District have been invited to a conference for that purpose by the commission. If the others are willing to participate, the entire subject of street car and bus fares will probably be opened up for discussion.

By all means this conference should be held. Other efforts to reduce fares within restricted areas and to stimulate traffic during non-congested hours have failed. But the traction companies are now faced with a new situation. The need for cooperation and for an aggressive policy is now greater. Certainly the companies have nothing to lose and everything to gain by talking over the situation with a view to inaugurating a new plan.

The invitation sent out by the Public Utilities Commission suggests that an experiment might be made with the understanding that any new rates adopted would not become permanent until their efficacy had been tested. It suggests the possibility of lower fares in off-peak hours or during the entire day within the business section. Either plan runs into practical difficulties, but they could doubtless be overcome. If the companies are disposed to cooperate, it should be possible to work out a plan that would benefit both themselves and the public.

In this period when virtually all prices have been reduced, lower street car fares in the congested area might prove to be very popular. Taxicab rates have been reduced, and where several people are traveling together it is cheaper to take a cab than a street car. The traction companies have been looking forward to the day when the 20-cent cab would be driven out of business, but that time is not yet in sight. Even if metered cabs should be restored, the charges contemplated are not much above the present low flat rate. Keen competition between cabs and the traction lines may be expected to continue.

A lower fare in the business district would undoubtedly stimulate traffic and put the street cars on a more competitive basis with taxicabs. The companies might obtain a larger return from a low fare than from the present 10-cent charge. At any rate they would learn a great deal from such an experiment, and would cultivate the good will of the public. Since at present the companies are asked only to discuss the proposition, and, if they agree, only to experiment with lower rates, there seems to be ground for hope that the proposed negotiations will go forward.

INSURED IDLENESS.

It is difficult to follow the reasoning which has led officials of the American Federation of Labor to support compulsory unemployment insurance. The traditional attitude of organized labor in the United States has been opposed to the support of men in idleness. Its demands have been for work at good wages rather than a dole.

The last labor convention was stampeded into the adoption of a resolution favoring compulsory unemployment insurance. Officials of the federation are still opposed to insured idleness in principle, but are nevertheless going ahead with the drafting of a bill embodying that idea. President William Green, in his Labor Day address, said this measure would "place upon industry the obligation to provide unemployment benefits for idle workers and to safeguard the full and complete exercise of the right of workers who may so desire to become and remain members of trade unions."

Mr. Green gives the impression that labor is not sincere in bringing forth this proposed legislation, but that it wishes only to wield a club over industry with a view to creating more jobs and arresting pay cuts.

It is well known that the so-called dole system destroys working opportunities. A man's incentive to work is weakened when he finds that he can exist at the expense of either the government or a former employer. Industry's ability to hire men and to go forward in the creation of work is hampered by the payment of benefits to idle men. Consequently, when the American Federation of Labor sets out to fasten a compulsory unemployment insurance system upon American industry it is working against its sounder objective of creating jobs.

Mr. Green and every other labor leader recognizes that jobs are more important than anything else to the working man. Why then does not organized labor concentrate its attention on the spreading of work and the creation of more jobs?

If organized labor is determined at this time to press for solution of the long-range problem of security for the workingman, why does it not consider a plan for the insurance of jobs and not for benefits to the idle? Stability of employment is the greatest problem of the age. But the fact that this problem is particularly acute in 1932 does not give excuse for fostering an uneconomic remedy that might hang like a millstone around the neck of American enterprise for many years.

CARROLLSBURGH

From the Baltimore Sun.

In a rather remote and somewhat neglected part of the area now occupied by the Capital City of the Nation there once stood the Maryland town of Carrollsburgh. It was a Potomac River landing. Although having a superior natural situation—at the point where what is now known as the Anacostia River flows into the Potomac—the town seems never to have greatly prospered. Its surviving annals, quite fragmentary, yield no alluring romance of the kind attaching to the histories of other Potomac landings. But Carrollsburgh figured quite potently and uniquely in the history of the country. In the parlance of these times it "got" the Capitol of the United States. September 18, 1793, was a great day for Carrollsburgh; for on that day its "getting" the Capitol was made secure by the laying of the corner stone of the great public structure that was expected to render the town both rich and famous. In fact, it did neither. The town's go-getting was fatal to it.

On the day before the 139th anniversary—which falls on a Sunday—of the laying of the corner stone of the United States Capitol the events of Carrollsburgh's great day are to be reenacted as a feature of the celebrating of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, the foremost participant in those events. Researches incident to the "relaying" of the Capitol corner stone brought out much rather curious history of the founding of the Capital City of the Nation. Easily the most curious has to do with the part Carrollsburgh played in the planning of the city. * * *

On his way from Philadelphia to Mount Vernon, preparatory to his historic journey through the South, George Washington stopped for the night at Georgetown, in the vicinity of which he had decided to establish the Capital City of the Nation.

"Finding the interests of the landowners about Georgetown and those about Carrollsburgh much at variance," he wrote in his diary, "and that their fears and jealousies of each other were counteracting the public purposes and might prove injurious to its best interests, whilst if properly managed they might subserve it, I requested them to meet me at 6 o'clock at my lodgings."

Out of that meeting came the basis of Washington, as it is, with the spacious avenues, its wealth of small parks, and, above all, its "magnificant distances." It is evident that, as a consequence of agreements entered into at that meeting, President Washington desired that benefits derivable from the establishment of the National Capital in that vicinity should be distributed, as far as feasible, equally between the two communities that were displaying "fears and jealousies of each other." A location near Georgetown was designated later on for the President's house and the executive offices and one near Corrollsburgh for the Capitol building.

Carrollsburgh was on the western side of Eastern branch, now called the Anacostia River, on a point, little more than a mud bank, that was washed also by the Potomac. It was near where Washington Barracks and the War College now stand.

The town of Carrollsburgh had never been incorporated, and it was absorbed in the new city. Efforts were made to maintain for it an unofficial identity. In what was the town there is today no more evidence of greatness than was there before the City of Washington was thought of.

SUMMER COTTAGE VISITORS.

'Tis strange that summer visitors are usually the kind
Who bring their appetites and leave their bathing suits behind.
They bring their flannel trousers and their outing raiment fine,
But when it's time for swimming trunks they always borrow mine.

Sometimes they bring a friend along we've heard no word about.
An extra room is needed, so from mine
I'm ordered out.
I grin and say: "It's quite all right.
The merrier the more!
And anyhow I've found that I sleep better on the floor."

We stretch the dining table to accommodate the throng.
I scarcely hear what mother says, the distance seems so long.
The salt's a city block away; so's
sugar for the tea,
But in the gayety which reigns they're never passed to me.

Pile up the place with visitors! What's mine is theirs to wear.
I couldn't stand a summer home unless my friends were there.
And I wouldn't want a castle on the river Thames or Rhine
Unless I had it crowded with those happy friends of mine.

No Man Does Great Work Unless He Loves His Job More Than His Pay.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A FEW years ago, in the midst of good times, I suggested that honors and decorations be used to make public service more attractive to able and honorable men.

There was no clamor of approval. Money was easy to get; wealth made men important in the eyes of their fellows; public service seemed to require nothing more than run-of-the-mine material, and the love of money seemed a sufficient incentive to all human endeavor.

But now the idea is being revived and people who understand the present plight of America are beginning to realize that something of the kind must be done if this civilization is to escape quick decay.

The only dependable motive known to man is self-interest. Public office can not attract able men unless it offers them something not to be gained by other means. And money can not be used as bait, for to pay them more than they can gain in private life would bankrupt the Nation.

The "honor" of public office no longer has appeal. An office can not confer honor on a big man if small men have held it.

Of course, the smallest office seems an honor to the man who is smaller still, but it can be stated as a general proposition that the man who regards an office as an honor isn't big enough to hold it. That wasn't true at one time, but it is true now.

The ordinary official earns more money by serving the public than he could earn in private life. He is willing to endure abuse, suspicion and indignity for the sake of the salary. But a man of great ability will not pay such a price for the privilege of serving his ungrateful fellows.

Some other reward must be found to tempt him.

In the years immediately preceding the Civil War, Congress was dominated by brilliant men from the South. The South was in the saddle because her ablest men considered public service an honor and conferred honor upon it. The ablest men of the North, then as now, devoted their abilities to commerce.

Men still covet distinction. Scores of them contribute $1,000 a year to Cal Tech because the dignity of "Associate" thus attained confers prestige and social advantages.

In normal times money alone provides no proof of excellence. It is too common. We need another measure of worth—another claim to distinction.

If public service is to attract the ablest men, it must afford proof of superiority and confer honors that all men will covet.

And somehow it must attract such men, for no nation is made great or kept great by mercenaries who serve for money alone.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Mr. Baruch and Roosevelt.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Bernard M. Baruch's declaration that business has nothing to fear in the prospect of Gov. Roosevelt's becoming President came at a significant time, a week before the governor's departure on his speaking tour through the West.

Gov. Roosevelt will deal on that tour with people in a part of the country where giant wealth supposedly has less say and influence than here. He will deal, presumably, with the interests of the many with small means rather than with the interests of the few who possess the means on which the needs of the many partly depend. On such a trip he can not spend much time stroking the fur of capital.

Militarists Want War.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Japanese social system has decayed. The attempt to blend an immemorial feudalism with a modern industrial system has failed. The Japanese expect war. Militarists, now in the saddle, feel war may be their only salvation. The fear of war, as a result of the Manchurian adventure—of war with Russia or the United States—keeps them in power.

Newark (Ohio) Advocate.

The Western Tour.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mr. Roosevelt's swing around the Western circle, which is to start next Monday, covering 8,000 miles and a score of States, has practical possibilities. He realizes that it is in this region, including the corn belt and the Pacific Coast, that he will probably win or lose his fight. It was recently reported that some of his closest friends had advised against any extensive tour of the West. Their strategy was based on the belief that since his remarks would necessarily be attuned to the radicalism supposedly rampant in that section, they would further alienate the conservative East.

In this connection there has been quoted the significant reply by Mr. Bernard Baruch, the other day, when asked his opinion as to the likelihood of Mr. Roosevelt's election: "Much will depend upon the words that come out of his own mouth between now and election day."

Roosevelt's Vermont Trip.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Gov. Roosevelt's dash into Vermont does not seem worth the gasoline on any theory that he will win the electoral vote of the State. It is well justified for several other reasons.

Every one wants to see a campaigner campaign; wants to see action; likes to hear a man talk to those who are on the other side; needs to get an idea of a candidate as an actual person.

So Gov. Roosevelt did not waste his time in Vermont, even if he said nothing important and did not come within a mile of winning the State's electoral vote. He helped himself elsewhere.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disfranchised Voters in Maine and the South.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Much ado is being made over the action of Lewiston, Me., officials in disfranchising 350 individuals who have obtained financial assistance from the community. That action was taken under an old statute providing that the voting privilege shall be denied to paupers. Its application is purely local, and it is very amusing to hear the incident referred to as the beginning of a general movement to disfranchise the unemployed.

Except for the restrictions involved in the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution, the States determine the qualifications of their own voters. Neither Congress nor the President has authority to interfere with the application of State laws prescribing who may and who may not vote. Consequently, the protest to President Hoover against the action taken at Lewiston was merely a political gesture.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, calls upon all governors of States where such laws exist to convene their legislatures and "remove such barriers against the exercise of American citizenship." The senator's zeal will not be appreciated in the Democratic South, where most of the laws that bar paupers from the polls are still in operation. There is not the slightest possibility that these statutes will be repealed.

Southern States make a practice of disfranchising humble citizens who are unable to read, who do not pay a poll tax or do not meet various other qualifications. In violation of the spirit if not the letter of the Constitution, these States keep many thousands of citizens from voting at every election. Senator Walsh may throw up his hands in dismay when a town in Maine applies a financial test to its voters, but the great body of the Democratic party in the South may be expected to remain discreetly silent.

The South habitually disfranchises not only thousands of unemployed, but many other citizens who can not meet property qualifications. If these restrictions were swept away, the resulting protest vote would be lodged chiefly against the Democratic party. It must have been an unguarded thought on the part of Senator Walsh that prompted him to open up this question on the eve of a presidential election.

Most of the unemployed who will be disfranchised this year because of low financial standing will be in the solid South. Here and there an obsolete statute forbidding paupers to vote may be called into play in the North or West by local officials seeking to protect their jobs, but that is insignificant in comparison with the deliberate disfranchisement of the most humble class in the solid South.

FEDERALIST.

Friend of Dogs Demands Enforcement of Law Against Vivisection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The thanks of humane owners of dogs everywhere are due the writer of a letter in the September 7 issue of The Post for calling attention to the matter of vivisection as relates to dogs that are so unfortunate as to fall into the hands of dog-catchers and taken to the pound. The law should be strictly enforced in this matter.

It would seem that some method might be adopted to prevent to a considerable extent, at least, the mistreatment and destruction of so many of these faithful animals. Why can not a law be enacted for the District restricting the breeding of puppies within certain limits and under certain penalties? The present indiscriminate breeding brings into the world a multitude of animals, many of which are neglected and sometimes cast aside, without home or friends, and left to suffer and die.

Many of the dogs that are sacrificed needlessly would, if given proper homes, prove to be not only a protection to their owners but companions of inestimable value.

A FRIEND OF THE DOG.

Plea for Disabled Retired Officers Whose Pay Is Cut 8 1-3 Per Cent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems a shame to me to think that this wonderful country of ours, the U. S. A., should feel that it is so poor that the temporary powers that be should feel it necessary to cut retired Army officers' pay 8 1-3 per cent, especially officers retired for physical disability who have given thirty years of their lives to their country. It is very hard on the officers and their families who are trying to raise the future man-power for this country under adverse conditions, but let us hope for the best.

It is a well known fact that the Army and Navy are poorly paid for the life work they do and they are on call at all times under all conditions. They are criticized always and usually by narrow-minded people. They protect humanity at all times and at a moment's notice without a word of complaint. Would it not be a much better idea to cut the salaries from $5,000 up, for one drawing that amount could usually afford to lose some of it, and not cut salaries of the physically disabled Army officers?

Mrs. B. G. R.

Voters Don't Vote.

Clifton W. Gilbert, in the Atlantic Monthly.

According to theory, our Government rests upon the consent of the governed. As a matter of actual practice, it does not. It rests upon the apathy of the governed, with aggressive, determined minorities taking advantage of that apathy to further their own ends.

Every representative and senator knows this, and generally shows it by his record. The great majority of members in both houses depend for reelection upon the apathy of all but a few of the voters in their districts.

(Associated Press.)

For almost the first time this summer, President and Mrs. Hoover made the White House their week-end residence.

Because of the comparative coolness of the weather here, the President decided against his customary week-end trip to his Blue Ridge Mountain retreat. Both the Chief Executive and First Lady yesterday morning attended the small gray stone Quaker Church near Connecticut avenue.

DEVOTION TO GOD'S MOTHER IS URGED

Triduum Services Opened at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

"The primary purpose of this triduum is to increase your devotion to Mary," said the Rev. Bernard Gilleran of the Passionist Fathers, from Jamaica, N. Y., preaching last night at St. Mary's Church. The service marked the opening of the triduum in honor of the Sorrowful Mother of Christ.

"True devotion does not consist in the recitation of long prayers nor the singing of hymns, but rather in leading true Christian lives, modeled after the perfect life of God's Holy Mother," he said.

"We would not call saluting the flag nor singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" true devotion to our country. But we would call the self-sacrifice and unselfish action of a soldier true devotion.

"Cardinal Newman has well said that 'we can not be near to God unless we are near the Mother of God.' Prove therefore, during these days your real solid devotion to Mary by making it a time of action, a time of real spiritual renovation.

"So many people attend novenas and triduums merely because they are looking for some temporal favor. They want a position, the cure of some ailment, happiness in the home or some other needs. Little do they realize that the best way to obtain these favors is to prove themselves really worthy of them by practicing true devotion. Be on friendly terms with God by a holy life and He will be far more disposed to hear your prayer.

"Therefore look down into your souls. Root out the faults, the predominant failings that make you displeasing to God and His Mother. Begin in real earnest the practice of virtue as Mary practiced it and you will merit for yourselves and others many temporal and spiritual blessings before this triduum comes to a close," the Rev. Father Gilleran concluded.

Engraver (entering from photo department)—Here's that photo of Mr. Garner. Do you really want us to make a cut from it?

Al—Certainly. Why not?

Engraver—It's a very poor likeness.

Al—Any likeness of Garner would have to be very poor. Make it up and be sure to touch up the horns so they'll show well.

Engraver (puzzled)—But Mr. Garner hasn't any horns.

Al—Well, give him a pair and if there's any complaint say I ordered 'em.

Engraver—How about that layout of the Republican candidates?

Al—Any way you lay out the Republican candidates is okay with me.

Publisher (entering with some proofs)—Good morning, Al. How about that special editorial on McAdoo?

Al—I'm having a lot of trouble with it.

Publisher—Can I be of any help?

Al—Yes. Dig me up a few dozen sulphuric adjectives.

Publisher—I gave you a book of sulphuric adjectives yesterday.

Al—I know, but I used 'em all on that Texas Jack article.

Publisher—By the way, you'll have to write another answer to that letter, "What's Wrong With the Southern Bloc?"

Al—Why?

Publisher—It set fire to the composing room and burned six printers.

Al—You'd better put in a sprinkler system; I'm going to send out my own inside story of the Chicago convention tomorrow.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

TWO separate programs from the American Legion convention in Portland, Oreg., will be carried by WRC today. The first program will be heard here at 1 o'clock this afternoon. After the call to order by National Commander Henry L. Stevens and the invocation by the Rev. H. A. Darche, national chaplain, Mrs. Gladys Brumbaugh will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner," and James F. Barton, national adjutant, will read the call of the convention.

Addresses of welcome to the legionnaires will be delivered by Gov. William L. Mier, of Oregon; Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California; Gov. Roland H. Hartley, of Washington; Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland, and Alex L. Berry, commander of the Oregon department of the legion. Commander Stevens will respond.

The second broadcast, at 11:30 tonight, will come from the Hotel Multnomah. The speakers, in order of their appearance, will be Floyd Gibbons, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston; Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit; Gov. Mier and Mayor Baker.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will take an active part in the Democratic radio campaign tonight, when she joins with Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, representative from Florida, in a political program over WRC and WMAL. Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Owen will speak from the New York studios and the broadcast will last for half an hour.

WEST VIRGINIA will be honored during the broadcast of the Parade of the States program (WRC, 8:30 o'clock) tonight. An orchestral medley built upon the legend that the first and last battles of the Revolutionary War were fought in West Virginia, will be played by the concert orchestra, directed by Erno Rapee. The McCravy brothers, guest artists on the program, will present "Songs of the Mountains of West Virginia."

The concluding portion of the final program of Latin-American music from the esplanade of the Pan-American Union will be broadcast by WMAL from 10 to 10:30 o'clock tonight.

The program will feature Leopoldo Gutierrez, Chilean barytone, and the United States Army Band.

The entire program may be heard over Station NAA, Arlington, which broadcasts on a frequency of 690 kilocycles.

The Federal Government's building program will be outlined by Perry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, during the National Radio Forum (WRC, 9 o'clock), tonight.

"THE OCTOPUS," ominous and elusive character, will come to the air when the first of a series of "Evening in Paris Mysteries," is broadcast WMAL, 8:30 o'clock) tonight. With Paris as a background, the series will concern the exploits of a daring American girl and an adventurous young Englishman in pursuit of "The Octopus," a sinister, dominating figure, seemingly all-powerful in the Paris underworld.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, will do their regular broadcasting from two airplanes tonight (WMAL, 9:15 p. m.). "You see, its like this," the colonel explained to Budd. "Today the Pioneer Air Transport Operators Association is holding its annual meeting at the Newark Airport and I am sure that they would put you in one plane and me in another and we could talk back and forth by short wave. And Louis Dean could stand on the roof of the CBS building and talk to both of us. As for the gas-pipe organ, I can put it in the plane with me and I can accompany myself."

There was a lot more talk about it, but that's the gist of the idea, which the boys will attempt to carry out tonight.

ERNO RAPEE, NBC maestro, speaks fluently in German, French, Hungarian and Russian, in addition to English.

ARLINGTON TO HOLD YOUNG DRIVERS' TEST

Dates Set for Examination of Autoists Between 14 and 16 Years Old.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Pursuant to the Acts of the General Assembly of Virginia, 1932, all minors between the ages of 14 and 16 operating automobiles will be required to take a driver's examination on or before September 29 to avoid being cited to appear in court.

Sergt. P. L. Thornton and State Traffic Inspector Wayne Carr will be at the Arlington County Courthouse September 14, 23 and 29 to assist in the examination. In addition to this examination, the act also provides that all motorists must have their cars inspected for brakes and lights. Inspector Carr said the State has arranged for these inspections to be made at various garages in the county. No fee will be charged unless repairs are found necessary.

The Woman's Club of Arlington will hold its first fall and winter meeting today at Windsor Arms. The business meeting will be preceded by a luncheon at 12 o'clock.

The St. Charles Catholic School at Clarendon opens its eleventh term today. Reports are that the enrollment this year will far exceed that of last year, which was 200 pupils.

Clarence R. Ahalt, recently named elector of the Eighth Congressional District, is announced as the principal speaker at the meeting of the League of Republican Women tonight in the Rucker Building, Clarendon.

There will be a meeting of the Rosslyn Precinct Civic League tomorrow night in the Woodrow Wilson Schoolhouse, Fort Myer Heights, at 8 o'clock.

The principal business will be a discussion of the proposed semiannual payment of real estate taxes and plans to seek the aid of the county board in construction of Wilson boulevard extended as an adequate approach to the Memorial Bridge.

A meeting of the Arlington County Democratic Woman's Club will be held tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Ellsworth Simpson, 120 Marion avenue, Clarendon. Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, founder of the Democratic Woman's Educational Council and member of the National Democratic committee speakers' bureau, will speak.

With plans completed for an extensive campaign in the interest of the Democratic candidates at the November election, the Democratic organization of Arlington County will formally open its headquarters in the Reese Building, Lawton avenue and Wilson boulevard, Clarendon, Wednesday night with a reception.

Roosevelt Attacked On Course in Haiti

Colored Republicans Also Assail Hastings' Choice for G. O. P. Work.

John M. Marquess, of Philadelphia, colored Republican candidate for elector in Pennsylvania, and J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of colored Elks, were the principal speakers yesterday at a joint meeting of the Women's Political Study Club and the Hoover and Curtis League, held at the Whitelaw. With reference to the appointment of Senator Hastings, of Delaware, last week, to direct the Negro participation in the November elections, Marquess said:

"I wonder if those in charge of the Republican campaign were doing their best thinking in choosing a man who voted for the confirmation of Judge Parker to head the Negro campaign. However, if I did not vote for Hoover, I could not vote for Roosevelt, who wrote the Haitian constitution that took the liberties from the black man in the Caribbean."

Mr. Wilson, in response, advised Negro voters to close ranks as Republicans, to forget their grievances for the present, in order to defeat Roosevelt because of his authorship of the Haitian constitution, and Garner because of his Texas residence "where signs proclaim that the Negro's presence is not desired after close of day."

Garden Club of Fairfax Will Meet Tomorrow

The Fairfax Garden Club will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon in the spinning house at Hollin Hall, the home of its president, Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson.

CONFEDERATE SONS TO DEBATE PENSIONS

R. E. Lee Camp Meets Tonight to Consider Action on Recent Cut.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans of Alexandria, will meet in Lee Camp Hall at 8 o'clock tonight and discuss further action in its fight against the reduction recently made in Confederate pensions by Gov. John Garland Pollard, which is understood to have been based on a decision by the Attorney General of Virginia.

The Mary Custis Lee-Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, has already gone on record as opposing the reduction, and has called attention to the cost of administering the fund of $900,000 appropriated by the State Legislature for the relief of the Confederate veterans. The pensions paid to the veterans and their widows and dependents are pitifully small, according to the Daughters of the Confederacy, the number of living veterans and their widows is rapidly decreasing, and a determined effort will be made to combat any reduction which may result in depriving the veterans of the small comforts which their pensions now allow them.

A resolution recently adopted by the Daughters of the Confederacy, opposing the reduction, has been forwarded to the State senator and the delegates from northern Virginia, who have promised to make an issue of this matter in the hope of retaining the present pensions.

Robert Leechman Tillett, aged 73 years, died Saturday night at his home at Baileys Cross Roads. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carrie Virginia Tillett; three sons, Robert W., Percy O. and Charles E. Tillett, and one daughter, Mrs. Paul Ralsgle, of Birmingham, Ala.

News was received in Alexandria last night of the death of Miss Emily Gibson, in Charles Town, W. Va., where she spent the summer with her sister, Mrs. David Janney Howell, of Alexandria, at her country home. Miss Gibson was the oldest daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William S. Gibson, of this city, and a sister of Richard Gibson.

Charles Jackson Anderson, 56 years old, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at his home at 1619 King street. He was a car inspector on the Southern Railway. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sallie Louise Anderson. Mr. Anderson was working on his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home and was found by his son, Jackson L. Anderson, dead under the car.

Church Bell Steeple Repaired.

The steeple of the First Baptist Church of Alexandria, which supports a bell weighing four tons, has undergone extensive repairs which have just been completed. The woodwork had rotted in some places, and this has been renewed, and the roof of the steeple has also been repaired with new slate. The bell is said to be one of the heaviest in Virginia.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Quaint—and youthfully lovely is this party frock of lace and supple satin. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie., Paris.)

THAT the taste of the American woman in general is improving with the rapidity with which this virile Nation learns anything has been recently expressed in a French newspaper. In this instance the remark was anent her style sense.

I have told you often how the best-dressed women in Europe are the American visitors or the expatriates, but that this did not apply to the mass of American women, who admittedly had not the chic of the mass of French women. Now things are catching up, and rapidly, according to this French newspaper.

The American woman with any means at all is finally bored with wearing the same dress her cook wears, and the same hat her secretary wears so jauntily. Which makes for elegance, my deahs, even if it is hard on the cook and sec! But it isn't, really—because the woman who has less to spend on her clothing can develop the chic that has made the French midinette famous, and leave individuality and elegance and the somber taste of luxury to her employer. Or, in this country of still remarkable opportunities, she can sculp a niche for herself in the career world and begin to show herself, as well as said world, her improvement in luxurious taste through the medium of her clothing.

Another and very important tendency on the part of the American woman is to grow up, finally. The woman of 30 is beginning to realize, and accordingly act, the fact that she is not doing herself justice when she dresses youthfully—and consequently cheaply. The beret, the skirt and waist—and sportswear in general, can only be becoming to the actually youthful face and air. When M'selle has become Madame in age, if not in fact, she does best by herself if she shows her improvement in taste by wearing more subtle and more expensive garments. This American women are now realizing.

Berets are it for fall! And you can make the most adorable ones out of ribbon—it's a little work and will take a little time, but you can't imagine how chic they are and how 'spensive they do look! Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make 'em, and see for yourself if you wouldn't rather have several ribbon berets made the Dah-ray way than any fall hats you can imagine. There are directions for making a round one, a square one, and an adorable little Sunday night beret of velvet ribbon for which you would have, oh, ever so many uses. And these berets are fine for the children, too—let alone for yourself.

• • • • •

Call it what you will, Dame Fashion reverts to styles of other days ever so often, and with much success. The party frock that Bernard et Cie. designed and I illustrated for you today is an example—even the designer calls it "Reminiscence!"

• • • •

A Wee French Lesson.

Certainment!
Pronounced (Sairtain-mahn).
Means just "certainly!" as you might guess—and you swallow off the last syllable, giving it the faintest possible "t" sound wa-a-a-a-y down deep in your throat.

Hoops of the satin material that makes the dress holds the back decolletage of this interesting evening gown. Isn't it lovely? Oh, I mean the one I illustrated in the corner—the back!

Au revoir.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ANOTHER CAUSE OF FOOT ERUPTIONS.

ACUTE skin disease, affecting the feet, is complained of more in hot weather than at other seasons. It is the fashion now to call this disease athlete's foot. In most instances where there is itching, some weeping and cracking, and maybe some blisters, athlete's foot is probable. The person who guesses that to be his trouble and uses remedies to kill the ringworm parasites locally will not make a mistake.

In very hot weather a fair proportion of such cases will be pompholyx rather than athlete's foot. Especially is this true if blisters are the outstanding symptom, and if heat and friction during the day have been much in operation.

In a certain proportion of the acute skin troubles of the foot the cause is exposure to dyes used in shoes and socks. In many of the shoe dye cases the symptoms are more constitutional than local, and the change in appearance of the skin of the foot is not due to blisters, oozing, and cracking. It is a duskiness—a change in color.

Physicians report a fair number of such cases, especially when the individual has had his shoes freshly dyed and wears them without letting them air for several hours.

The shoe trade has spent considerable effort in investigating the possibilities of poisoning the feet from shoes. They do not take much stock in dyes as a cause of foot poisoning. However, they think it possible that some cases that are called athlete's foot may be due to sumac poisoning. Sumac belongs to the poison ivy family. Cases of this poisoning, with symptoms somewhat similar to ivy poisoning, are encountered. Considerable leather is tanned with sumac. In fact, it is one of the popular tanning agents.

In hot weather, when the feet are wet with sweat or when a person has been in the rain and his shoes are wet through, some of the sumac left in the leather in the tanning process goes into solution and is brought in contact with the skin. The solution of sumac is never a strong one and it is less poisonous than poison ivy. Nevertheless, the exposure may be continued for several hours.

The eruption caused resembles that of poison ivy, or is a cross between that and ringworm of the foot. It passes away without much treatment if the sumac tanned shoes are discarded and others are worn. However, simple, soothing remedies are helpful. Probably ointments may spread the poison, as they do when applied to the weeping surfaces of poison ivy.

The manufacturers advise that shoes made of sumac tanned leather should always be lined. A good, heavy cotton cloth lining, such as is used in shoes, will prevent the sumac from reaching the skin in dosage large enough or strong enough to cause an eruption. At least their experiments lead them to think it does.

THROUGH GROWING.

J. B. F. writes:

1. I am 22 years old and 5 feet 3 inches tall. Will I grow any more?

2. Is there any way possible that you know as to how I can grow a couple of inches taller without any physical harm?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. There is none.

LEAVE ONIONS ALONE.

M. B. writes: Why is it I cannot eat a raw onion without getting a sick feeling and burning down my stomach that make my body burning hot and causes vomiting? I also get a headache, which lasts about five minutes. Strong or mild, I get the same result.

REPLY.

You seem to be sensitized to onions. Avoid them. You do not need them.

BOOZE NOT ALWAYS VILLAIN.

S. E. W. writes: What causes red or purple places on the skin which, on close inspection, are tiny blood vessels very close to the surface. I have had those places on my legs for several years and now I believe I notice the same thing on my chest. I am 25 years of age, 5 feet 6½ inches tall, and weigh 118 pounds.

REPLY.

Drinking whisky is generally charged with being the cause of these small varicosities. It is sometimes the cause. More frequently it is not. I do not know the cause of those cases not due to whisky drinking.

PERIL IN BROMIDES.

Miss A. G. writes: Is it harmful in any way to make a daily habit of taking two or three bromides? I know some one who can't seem to do without them.

REPLY.

It is. Bromide is a habit forming drug. It dulls the mind and changes the personality. People who use it lose coordination and are prone to hallucinations. A minor effect occasionally noted is a bromide eruption.

GLITTERING GOLD.

AN ancient proverb tells us that all is not gold that glitters. The application of this proverb to the play of a hand at Contract Bridge is that it is not always wise for a player to attempt to cash every trick available to defeat the contract. Sometimes the sacrifice of a high card will return worth-while dividends to the accurate player.

An interesting case in point was a hand I saw played in a Rubber game in a New York Bridge club recently. The hand was:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
North and South—60.

	♠ 6 3 ♡ Q J 4 ◇ A 8 6 ♣ Q 8 6 4 2
♠ Q 7 4 2 ♡ 8 3 ◇ J 7 4 ♣ J 10 9 7	N W E S	♠ K J 10 ♡ A 9 7 5 2 ◇ K 9 5 ♣ K 8
	♠ A 9 8 5 ♡ K 10 6 ◇ Q 10 3 2 ♣ A 5

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1NT(1)	Pass	2♣(2)	2♡(3)
Pass	Pass	2NT(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) The only bid.
(2) A game contract—the correct response.
(3) A sound defensive Overcall.
(4) With almost 2 honor-tricks and a stopper in the adversely bid suit, North decides to take a chance to complete the game.

When the Dummy went down on the table, after West had led the heart 8, South saw that his chance of making the contract was very remote. If he could win 3 diamond tricks, 2 heart tricks and 1 spade, he must still find 2 tricks in the club suit. The club suit, due to the lack of any honors other than the Ace and Queen, did not appeal to him as offering as good a chance as the diamond, which, if evenly divided, and East held the King, could be made to produce three tricks, and the club situation could be left for later developments.

East won the first trick with the heart Ace, and returned the suit, South winning with the King. A small diamond was then led to the Ace in Dummy, and the suit returned. East gave South a rather difficult guess by refusing to play the King, but South, placing the outstanding honor strength in the East hand, in view of the weakness of the heart suit and the vulnerable Overcall, played the Queen and returned the suit, thus establishing the third trick in diamonds for himself. East now returned a heart, clearing the suit. He now led a spade from Dummy, intending to play the 8 if East played small, but when East played the 10 he changed his plan of campaign and went up with the Ace. The long diamond was now cashed, upon which East mistakenly discarded the spade Knave, desiring to retain the two established hearts and the guard to the stopper in clubs. South then led a spade, which East was forced to win. East cashed two hearts, but at the end was compelled to lead away from the club King for the deadly end-play, which gave South his contract.

East should have seen the play in the making. The correct discard on the diamond was not the spade Knave, but the King, as it was more important for East to have a card of exit from his hand than a card of entry. Had East sacrificed the certain spade trick the contract must have been defeated.

Tests Over New York Are Slated by Akron

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Navy airship Akron will test some of its new equipment over Floyd Bennett Field, airport officials announce today. Five tiny fighting planes of a new type are to be dropped from the hold of the ship, put through their paces and then taken back into the Akron by means of a hook apparatus.

Navy officers plan to bring the Akron over the field for these maneuvers Thursday, Friday, Monday and Tuesday.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

AT a preview during my recent sojourn in Hollywood, the question of sleep somehow came up for discussion. One very sensible screen star volunteered the maxim: "To skimp on sleep is to skimp on beauty." I promised to publish it in my beauty column, so here it is.

Isn't it true that a great many of us cheat on sleep, and very often, too, pat ourselves on the back, saying, "Ah, you're getting away with it." But, are you? Dark circles under the eyes, pouches, wrinkles are often the result of insufficient sleep. And what of the dark disposition, the early morning grouch, a chronic condition of the blues and pessimism?

How Much Sleep?

I've often heard people say that they can do very nicely, "thank you," on five or six hours of sleep a night. No, they don't require the usual eight hours. Physicians generally agree that, with precious few exceptions, the average human needs an average of eight hours of good, sound, relaxing sleep per night. You may be able to get by with less occasionally, but if you make it a habit to burn the candle at both ends, cutting short on sleep to begin with and putting an end to sweet dreams by the dreaded early summons from the alarm clock—well, big aches from little ills will grow.

The screen stars know the secret of sufficient, sound sleep. Frances Dee, for instance, gets nine hours of sleep a night and says, emphatically, that is her only beauty secret. Helen Twelvetrees tries not to accept an invitation out which will mean late hours when working. Irene Dunne, ditto. Nancy Carroll tries to get eight hours of sleep every night, and Ruth Chatterton gets "loads of sleep" particularly when working on a picture. That's what keeps her looking her best, she says.

Plan for Sleep.

As one physician told me recently, the cause of many cases of nerves is little sleep. If women would plan their sleep and relaxation just as they do their menus, their vacations, and their childrens' educations, sleep would be the scientific, healthful and beautifying regimen it should be, recharging the battery that we call our body, building broken down cells, tissues and nerves.

So, tomorrow let us actually plan for sleep and consider very carefully the many factors that can help us to get the most of this daily, or rather nightly, vacation from mental and bodily labors.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

IF September 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 2:15 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

The planetary aspects of September 12 are distinctly favorable, and promise much in the way of accomplishment to those who are engaged in commercial or professional pursuits. New ideas will occur; new plans will be put into execution. A chance meeting with an old, but nearly-forgotten friend will bring about many changes.

A child born on this September 12 will be petulant and, in many of its ways, worrying; well regulated and uniform discipline will be required to convert it into the successful and strong character that it is destined, according to the stars, to become. Its nature will be transformed with the approach of maturity, and, instead of being avoided, it will be assiduously courted.

You, if born on September 12, are original and exceptional; with you, the unexpected can always be expected. You subscribe to very few of the beliefs that prevail and you hold in scant respect convention and established custom. You "gang your ain gaint," regardless of criticism and consequences. You possess moral and physical courage in a high degree, and fear nothing except the reproach of your own conscience.

You take no flattering unction to your soul that you are better or wiser than others; you do claim, however, the right to independent thought and action. In the fullest sense of the term, you are captain of your soul. Your friends are not numerous, but the few you have are worth their weight in gold. You, to these, are loyal and faithful.

All hypocrisy, and make-believe, pretension or affection is anathema to you. A sturdy ruggedness of character distinguishes you from your fellows, and although, at times, it may estrange, in the long run, it commands respect and admiration. You are capable of strong emotions, and never fight shy of showing them. You are sympathetic and generous, always willing, if they will only keep quiet about it, to help raise those who have fallen, or to assist those who need it.

Successful people born on September 12:

Tracy Carey Drake, hotel proprietor.

Maurice Chevalier, film artist.

Richard M. Hoe, inventor of the rotary printing press.

Union N. Bethell, first president American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Charles W. Super, president of Ohio University.

Richard J. Gatling, gun inventor.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Wash the hair of a little child once a week, winter or summer, and wash brushes and combs at the same time. In winter dry the hair quickly with vigorous rubbing in a warm room. In summer it may be well dried in the direct sunshine. It is best to use liquid soap, which can be prepared readily by heating soap shavings and water until the soap is dissolved. It is often simpler to wash the hair during the tub bath, first wetting the hair, then rubbing thoroughly both scalp and hair with soap, and then rinsing the hair several times by means of a spray or pitcher of water until all soap is removed. For the older child it may be more satisfactory to use a basin. Care always must be taken not to get soap into the eyes, and the rinsing water should be guided away from the face.

If yellow crusts are seen on the scalp, the head should be well rubbed with oil at night and washed in the morning at least twice a week. Plenty of warm water and soap should be rubbed in with a wash cloth and the crusts soaked off. Rinse the hair thoroughly. A fine-toothed comb should not be used.

Hair should be brushed daily.

Habits of cleanliness and neatness in clothing should be established while the child is young. Get the child used to frequent changes of underclothing. Teach him to want to have all his clothes in good condition and well buttoned up. Getting clothes dirty by playing in the yard is to be expected and not frowned upon. As far as possible have clothes washable and change them often. Children should never be allowed to cover soiled or torn underwear with fine outer garments. The clothes that do not show are as important as those that do.

Low hooks for coats, dresses, &c., low shelves for shoes and rubbers, and bureau drawers that the child can open and close without help are all aids in the habit of caring for clothing.

Train Is Delayed By Freight Crash

Eleven Hoboes Injured as 27 Cars Are Derailed at Chatham.

Passengers on the Atlanta-New Orleans express headed for the Capital yesterday were delayed 1 hour and 25 minutes when 27 cars of a Southern Railway freight train were derailed near Chatham, Va., injuring 11 hoboes.

According to the Associated Press, the sixth car from the locomotive left the tracks, carrying 26 others with it, piling up both sides of the track with merchandise and twisted beams. Railroad officials had not determined the cause of the wreck.

Traffic between Washington and Lynchburg, Va., was served by a special train which was made up at Lynchburg when the regular train was delayed.

CHARACTER- The Great Builder

"Character is the silent witness of every act, the great builder of reliable products."

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice)

Canterbury! Notre Dame! Amiens! Rheims! What visions the building of these great cathedrals inspires in our minds.

Here artists created masterpieces of surpassing beauty; guild workers gave the skillful craft of their hands; peasants offered the work of their strong arms; kings gave freely of their treasures, and nobles of their land.

Into the rising spires, the vaulted nave, the stained glass windows, each built a lasting record of achievement — each left an enduring evidence of CHARACTER, the Great Builder.

In much the same way, the character of splendid men is builded into the businesses which comprise the membership of the Rice Leaders of the World Association. These concerns did not spring up in a day. Like the cathedrals, they represent years of effort, growing from the hearts and lives of men, who put into them a full measure of vision, of toil, and the spirit of service.

Here able executives and loyal employees have worked side by side, building their character into their merchandise. Here, in many cases, sons have taken up the work laid down by fathers and grandfathers, perpetuating pride of craftsmanship from one generation to another.

Because of such unswerving devotion to Character Standards, these manufacturers are privileged to be known as members of the Rice Leaders of the World Association, under the following

Qualifications for Membership:

HONOR:	A recognized reputation for fair and honorable business dealings.
QUALITY:	An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.
STRENGTH:	A responsible and substantial financial standing.
SERVICE:	A recognized reputation for conducting business in prompt and efficient manner.

Look for the Association's heraldic Emblem, which portrays these high standards, in members' catalogs, literature and advertisements. Wherever seen, it is your Warrant of Quality and Fair Dealing. Without reflecting upon manufacturers not enjoying membership, it testifies to CHARACTER, "the silent witness of every act, the great builder of reliable products."

NATS BEAT CHISOX TWICE; WITHIN GAME OF A'S

7 Former Champions in Field as U. S. Amateur Starts Today

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

A DANGEROUS custom is creeping into the intercollegiate football vale, what with each section of the country interpreting the new rules to its own liking.

During the past week, the East, Midwest and South have held interpretation meetings, demonstration games, and other preseason clinics in an attempt to arrive at a uniform code of play, and the results to date have been three very divergent constructions of the rules committee's new laws.

The football world, like Gaul, is divided in three parts with the opening of the season three weeks away, and unless the sections strike a middle road in the enforcement of the rules, the confusion that is bound to result will make the late World War look like another Filipino insurrection.

Three Different Rulings Made.

The new rule prohibiting the flying tackle and the flying block has been the pet subject of the interpretation meetings and the East, Midwest and South each have placed a different construction on the intent.

The rule specifically states that the tackler or blocker must not leave his feet until the instant of contact with the ball-carrier or the man to be taken out of the play, and thus far the Southern coaches alone have agreed that this is the intent and that the rule will be strictly enforced.

Eastern coaches have interpreted the rule more elastically. The best minds of the East, including coaches and officials, have agreed that a man can leave his feet if within arm's length of the ball-carrier or the man to be taken out of the play.

The Midwestern coaches see the rule as permitting a tackler or blocker to leave his feet to avoid an opponent in his path, despite the specific injunction against such tactics, yet this interpretation has been adopted.

Intersectional Games to Cause Disputes.

Such widely divergent constructions of the new code will affect every intersectional game of the season, and intersectional football games now are almost the rule rather than the exception.

It will be necessary for rival coaches and officials to confer before each game and decide the rules which will govern, as if there were no national intercollegiate football rules in the book for ready reference.

First Flag in Chattanooga History.

Chattanooga wins the Southern Association pennant for the first time in history, barring the long chance that Memphis wins a protest that is being taken before Judge Landis, in which case, Chattanooga will lose the flag by a single point.

Memphis' contention that Chattanooga not be allowed to play off a game with Knoxville, which was halted by darkness, was sustained by the league's board of directors which overruled President Martin of the League on the question, but Commissioner Landis overruled the directors and ordered the game played. It was won by Chattanooga.

Memphis disputes Landis' authority to supersede the board of directors, pointing out that disputes between minor league clubs must be referred to the National Association, governing body of the minors, for final decision.

That may be true, but in the major-minor league agreement Judge Landis is recognized as the final authority to determine actions that are "detrimental to baseball," and the good commissioner may decide that his authority in that direction covers the present case.

Harris Hero in Drive Of Lookouts.

Dave Harris has been the hero of Chattanooga's drive for the pennant. Ever since his arrival from

Young Stars and British Holding Powerful Hand in Tournament at Baltimore

Moreland, Howell and Seaver Chief Hopes of U. S. Youths.

Ouimet Leads Veteran Contingent Into 18-Hole Round Today.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The second United States amateur golf championship of the post-Jones era, flavored with the strongest foreign challenge in years and a fine crop of young contenders, opens over Five Farms course here tomorrow.

The chances for a youngster or a foreign star to win the thirty-sixth tournament will be much better with the king of them all, Bobby Jones, in the gallery. And most of those entered feel they have at least an outside chance.

Seven Veterans Seek Crown.

But standing in their path will be seven veterans, all of whom have worn the crown and hope to place it on their brow again Saturday. In addition to the defending champion, Francis Ouimet, of Boston, former title holder, who will play in the first eighteen holes of the qualifying test tomorrow, are Jess Sweetser, Harrison Johnston, Charles Evans, Max Marston, Chandler Egan and Jesse Guilford.

T. A. Torrance, captain of the British Walker Cup team; Rex and Lister Hartley, Cyril Tolley and John De Forrest, the British champion, are the chief threats from overseas, while Ross Somerville appears the most formidable Canadian entry.

Gus Moreland, the youthful Dallas star, who scored a 69, one under par, in his first practice round today, seems the pick of the younger generation, along with Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles; Maurice McCarthy, of New York, and Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va. Moreland's hand, which was cut several days ago, was almost healed today.

Guilford, who was sick yesterday, said today he would play, and showed his fitness by scoring a 75. Robert Grant, of Weathersfield, Conn., led the assault on par today with a 68, to equal the course record set by Torrance and McCarthy.

Intercollegiate Champ Scores 74.

Other scores today included Johnny Fischer, the intercollegiate champion, of Fort Thomas, Ky., 74; George Voigt, New York, 71; Leonard Martin, Rye, N. Y., 71; Cyril Tolley, England, 77; Francis Brown, Honolulu, 74; Seaver, 72; William Turness, Elmsford, N. Y., 72; Jack Westland, Chicago, 74, and Johnny Lehman, Chicago, 75.

Rex Eaton, of Denver, and Nathan Grimes, of Colorado Springs, withdrew today, leaving 159 players scheduled to start. The first pair get away at 8 o'clock.

Filipino Singles Title Is Captured by Silva

Felix M. Silva won the tenth annual Filipino tennis championship yesterday afternoon on the Monument courts. He overwhelmed Arturo Tomelden in straight sets, 6—3, 8—6, 6—0.

Silva's victory gave him two legs on the Senator Osmena Cup, which was put up for competition since 1924.

Tomelden's last stand was in the second set, when he had Silva seven times set point in the ninth and tenth games.

Speaker Manuel Roxas, of the Philippine House of Representatives, donated trophies to the winners of all events for permanent possession. He was represented by Attorney Marcial Lichauco, who presented prizes to the winners and runners-up in singles.

NEE SHOOTS SUBPAR GOLF

Has 34 for Nine Holes as D. C. Delegation Practices.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 11.—A par-cracking nine-hole score of 34 by Maurice Nee, 17-year-old junior sensation from the Manor Club, featured today's concluding practice rounds for the national amateur golf tournament at Five Farms by candidates from the District of Columbia.

Cracking on the homeward stretch, Nee took 40 strokes to wind up with a 74 for the route, thereby equaling Harry Pitt's practice total on Saturday. Nee's 34, one below orthodox figures, showed birdies on the 163-yard fourth and 355-yard par four eighth.

Nee and Pitt Defeat Voigt-Held.

Nee teamed with Harry Pitt, his companion from Manor, to win an abbreviated match from George Voigt, former District title holder, and Eddie Held. Voigt later in the day toured the course in 71 strokes, one above par. Pitt, striking a streak of wild tee shots, blew up for an 81, being out in 42.

Roger Peacock, District champion flying the colors of Indian Spring, continued his steady plodding by recording a brace of 38's.

Young Billy Dettweiler, 14, of Manor, played like a veteran today while in the company of Franklin Parks, of Congressional. Billy finished with a 76, the best he has done so far in practice. He had a 37 on the homeward route. Parks was out in 40 and back in 39.

Martin F. McCarthy, of Beaver Dam, playing Five Farms for the first time in a week, tuned up his shots. Neither Miller Stevinson nor Johnny Brawner, of Columbia, were at the scene today.

Wes Ferrell Back, Beats Yanks, 5 to 4

Tribe's Mound Ace Scores 21st Victory; Allen's Streak Snapped.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Wesley (I'll-be-good) Ferrell came back from a ten-day suspension today to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 5-to-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

The temperamental mound ace, who promised his boss to behave himself after being benched in Boston for a display of temper on the field, was given a round of applause by the 25,000 who witnessed the game. It was Wes's twenty-first win of the season.

The Yanks, minus the Ruthian touch, experienced trouble in getting under way and succumbed to inertia at the times when hits meant runs. Ten New York runners died on the base paths.

Allen's winning streak was nipped at ten games by Cleveland's victory today.

FLAG IN DIXIE IS WON BY LOOKOUTS

Chattanooga Noses Out Memphis by Two Points.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Chattanooga today won the 1932 Southern Association pennant with a 5-to-0 victory over Knoxville in the final game of the season.

Meanwhile the Memphis Chicks, who have been in a seesaw battle with the Lookouts for several weeks, finished in second place by defeating New Orleans, 1 to 0 in 10 innings. Memphis and Chattanooga were only two percentage points apart in the final stands, .658 to .656.

Technicalities Figure In Fight.

Their fight for the pennant in the past few days developed into a round of technicalities, as Memphis sought to prevent the replaying of the second game of the Labor Day doubleheader between Chattanooga and Knoxville, which was called after three innings because of darkness.

An appeal to Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis brought a ruling that the game should be replayed, and Chattanooga tightened its hold on first place by winning it. Chattanooga is a Washington "farm."

Memphis Files Three Protests.

Memphis Tenn., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Officials of the Memphis baseball club, hoping for another chance at the Southern Association pennant, which they lost to Chattanooga by a slim margin, made three efforts today to secure aid from Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The names of nearly 4,000 fans were signed to a petition asking Landis to allow a five-game play-off. In a telegram the Memphis club asked the commissioner to demand a play-off on account of controversies between Chattanooga and Memphis. Another telegram asked Landis to allow an appeal to the national board of arbitration on the protested Chattanooga-Knoxville game of last Friday, a play-off of an unfinished Labor Day game.

Secretary Frank Longinotti, of the Memphis club, criticized the use by Chattanooga of Outfielder Dave Harris, formerly of the Washington Nationals.

"Dispatches out of Washington state Outfielder Harris, transferred to Chattanooga, was suspended by Washington on account of illness and immediately sent by plane in one day to Chattanooga for service there, and played before any suspension expired," Longinotti said in his telegram to Landis.

Schmeling vs. Walker Fight May Be Delayed

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Probable postponement of the Mickey Walker-Max Schmeling heavyweight bout until Friday, September 23, was announced today by Madison Square Garden.

The fight, originally slated for Monday, September 19, probably will be set back four days to give Walker a chance to recover fully from a painful boil on his left arm.

FOXX'S 52D HOMER LETS A'S WIN

Comes With Mate on Bases to Defeat Tigers, 5 to 4.

DETROIT, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Jimmy Foxx's fifty-second home run of the season in the seventh inning, with Haas on base, represented the margin by which the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Tigers, 5 to 4, in a series opener today.

Rube Walberg, who went the route for the A's, walked eight men, but was spared a defeat by timely hitting and some sparkling fielding, in which Al Simmons starred with four extraordinary catches, one a shoestring stab, on which he twisted an ankle. He resumed play after a few minutes of rest.

SLEUTHS WIN BUT LOSE.

CUBS SCORE TO LEAD BY 6 GAMES

Hartnett's Home Run, 1 On, Beats Brooklyn, 3 to 1.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The speed and curves of Mississippi Guy Bush were entirely too much for the Dodgers today and the Chicago Cubs advanced another step toward the pennant by winning their second straight here by a score of 3 to 1.

The Cubs touched Heimach and Thurston for nine hits and obtained their margin of victory in the fourth when Hartnett hit a homer with Grimm on base.

Glenn Wright's error following a single by Jurges led to the first Chicago run in the fourth. Two were out when the Brooklyn captain booted English's grounder, and when Cuyler followed with a single through the box, Jurges scored.

Hartnett's Homer Decisive.

Manager Grimm led off in the fourth with a single and scored ahead of Hartnett on the catcher's home run against the top of the left field grandstand.

The victory put the Cubs six games ahead of the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates, who were idle, and into a position where four more victories, four Dodger defeats or any combination within those limits would eliminate the Dodgers from the pennant race.

Babe Ruth's Condition Reported Unchanged

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth's condition remained unchanged today and there still was no definite word as to when the home-run king will resume his place in the New York Yankees' line-up.

At his home it was said that Ruth had spent another restless night and was running a slight fever, but that there was nothing in his condition to cause alarm.

Vines' Victory Over Cochet Puts Him on Tennis Throne

By HERBERT W. BAKER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines, gangling 20-year-old youngster from Pasadena, has moved into the throne room of world tennis, dominating the picture much as did Big Bill Tilden, a decade ago.

When the tall Californian, with the same type of terrific drives as Tilden used to employ, blasted Henri Cochet into a straight-set defeat in the final round of the national singles championship yesterday, he climaxed the most successful season any American player has enjoyed since Big Bill was in his prime.

He captured the British championship in his first appearance on Wimbledon's famous courts; he gave Cochet his first Davis Cup defeat since the trophy left this country; won the national doubles crown with Keith Gledhill, and won the Newport singles title, the only grass court tournament in which he competed in the United States this year. His feat of winning the American singles title two years in a row has not been accomplished since Tilden scored his sixth successive victory in 1925.

His victory over Cochet in the Davis Cup challenge round was discounted by many observers on the score that France already had clinched the cup and that Cochet, therefore, did not give his best efforts. But there was no possible ground on which to minimize his amazing triumph over the French ace at Forest Hills yesterday, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Weaver and Marberry Extend Washington's Streak to Eight in Row

Marberry Wins Duel From Lyons in Opener, 2-1.

Weaver Gets 21st Decision in Nightcap, 9 to 4.

GOING UP!

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Sept. 11.—Fred Marberry and Monte Weaver hurled the Washington Nationals to a double victory over the White Sox here today, 2 to 1 and 9 to 4. The triumphs gave the visitors a record of 23 out of their last 29 starts and marked their seventh and eighth in a row. Weaver's victory in the nightcap, his twenty-first of the year, enabled the Nats to cut down the Athletics' second-place lead in the race to a single game, Marberry's in the opener, matching the A's single triumph over the Tigers. A crowd of 15,000 was on hand.

Manush cracked out two hits in each game to give him a total of 196 safeties, the most made by any player in the American League this season. He tops Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, by two.

Tradition was on the Sox side as Ed Walsh and Billy Sullivan, sons of the famous White Sox battery of a quarter century ago, did the pitching and catching in the second game. But Walsh, making his first major league start of the year, since being recalled from Oakland, faded after five innings during which he gave five runs.

Poor Chisox Fielding Helps Nats.

It was sloppy fielding on the part of the White Sox that permitted Marberry to beat Sad Sam Jones in the early contest. Each club got a score in the first. The Washington tally resulted from pop hits by Kuhel and Myer that should have been caught, followed by Manush's fly to Funk. The Sox came right back to tie it on Seeds' triple and a single by Sullivan.

The winning Nat score came in the sixth on more poor play by the Hose. Kuhel dropped a double on the left-field foul line to start things and was sacrificed to second. Then Selph misjudged Manush's fly to short right and it fell for a two-baser, Kuhel counting.

Both Marberry and Jones allowed six hits, but big Fred was at his best toward the close, the Hose making but one safety in the last five innings.

The Walsh-Sullivan combine ran into trouble at the very start of the second game. With one out, Myer singled, the first of four straight hits he made in this game, and went to third on Manush's hit. Cronin scored Myer with a fly to Norman. Carl Reynolds then smashed a drive into the upper deck of the left field stands, scoring Manush ahead of him.

Weaver's worst inning was the second, when solid hits by Appling, Norman and Rothrock scored two runs and brought the locals to within one run of a tie. Hits by Myer and Cronin and a wild pitch permitted the Nats to score in the third, and they got another run back in the fifth when Myer walked, stole second and scored on a safety by Manush.

Weaver Hurts Hand And Retires.

After Walsh had departed in favor of a pinch hitter who did not hit, young Fabian Kowalik, from San Antonio, did the White Sox pitching. He was not as bad as he was unlucky, for the Hose again started doing funny things in the field.

Two hits and an error by Rothrock gave Washington two in the seventh after they had picked up one off Kowalik in the sixth without the aid of a hit. Their final score resulted in the ninth on hits by Myer and Cronin.

Chicago made two unearned runs in the eighth on errors by Cronin and Spencer.

In the ninth, with two out, Weaver injured his hand knocking down Seeds' hard drive through the box and Brown replaced him. He tossed out Berry to end the inning and the game.

"TUT'S" RADIO NINE WINS.

"Tut's" Radio nine hung a 13 to 9 defeat on the Terminal Ice Co. nine yesterday. Reynolds starred for the winners.

WOODMONT GOLF EXHIBITION TO MRS. MECKLEY-THORN

Mrs. Haynes And McLeod Beaten

Thorn's Birdie Three on 18th Decisive in Two-Point Win.

Miller Wins Medal at Manor Club; Other Results.

By DAVE HERMAN.

A BIRDIE three on the eighteenth hole by A. B. Thorn enabled the Woodmont pro and Mrs. Betty Meckley, Indian Spring feminine star, to defeat Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Middle Atlantic women's champion, and Freddie McLeod, Columbia pro, by 2 points in a stirring match yesterday at the Woodmont Country Club, the feature event of a gala field day and home-coming program.

Playing on a best ball and aggregate basis, Mrs. Meckley and Thorn held a 3-point lead at the turn, only to be tied on the seventeenth. Thorn, who knows every blade of grass on his home links, shot the first nine in 38 and blazed home in 34. His 72 was three above par. McLeod registered a 73, Mrs. Meckley a 90 and Mrs. Haynes an 87. Thorn fired in birdies on the tenth and eleventh and banged his second shot dead to the pin for the winning birdie on the home hole.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: LINCOLN FIELDS, CHICAGO, SEPT. 11.

There's a cold breeze whipping in from the lake tonight and many of the gang are shy of overcoats.

There's nothing about tomorrow's typical wash day card to make a fellow think there's a chance to win a new "benny." In fact, there's more chatter in the hotel lobbies tonight about the Cubs and their chances of beating the Yanks than about the races. If the "Rajah," so those in the know say, had not insisted on handling the hosses as well as the Cubs, he would be in on another world series cut.

Such is life in large cities. Yours, BILL.

FIRST RACE—I wouldn't give 30 cents worth of dog meat for this bunch of maidens. TEA TAX, CATWALK and PALATINE may last it out.

SECOND RACE—CAMP BOSS, with No. 1 post position, has the best of it. GRAND PRINCE and DON ROMIRO are the contenders.

THIRD RACE—WILY GIRL has best of the weights. VOLTINA and OSWEGO PRINCESS have money chances.

FOURTH RACE—GERTRUDE L. has the early speed and may beat GLAMOROUS. I like FLIRTING to show.

FIFTH RACE—BROWN WISDOM, on form, is a copper-riveted cinch. Doesn't mean, however, it will win. Anything can, and does, happen out here. PANCHO LOPEZ and STOCK MARKET for the balance.

SIXTH RACE—EASY, PREFER and HABANERO is the order in which they should finish, but don't be surprised if they reverse it.

SEVENTH RACE—BEAUTIFUL DOLL, NIATO and BLACK PATRICIA will all be knocking at the door. It is a wide open race.

EIGHTH RACE—OUTCRY will go to the front and may last the route. CHUM and CHIP prefer a route, and will be going strong at the finish. Hard winter ahead. Better save your money until I can meet you in Havre.

At Chattanooga's request, Harris will not rejoin the Washington Club immediately, as planned. They want him down in Chattanooga to participate in the gigantic "home-coming" that the citizens have arranged for the club.

TWO DRILLS TODAY ON C. U. GRID

Bergman Faces Task in Replacing Injured Howe.

BACK from New York, where he attended a rules interpretation meeting over the week-end, Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Arthur J. ("Dutch") Bergman today speeds up work at Brookland.

The two-a-day workout schedule will be brought into effect, both morning and afternoon practices being scheduled.

Veterans and sophomores alike are to share in these sessions, Bergman insists, no one being spared overtime licks.

Heavier Work Starts Tomorrow.

Scrimmaging and heavier work will be introduced tomorrow, extra pressure being brought to bear due to the lateness of the reporting date.

Upon arriving from New York Bergman expressed himself as greatly distressed at the fractured knee-cap which has finishd Ray Howe, his ace right end, for the season.

"Howe was one of the players around whom we planned centering our defense," Bergman explained. Replacing him is probably the most difficult task now confronting us. Naturally we are forced to make the best choice possible within a brief period."

More optimistic was the report received from Capt. "Bus" Sheary, star full back, who is nursing an infected foot in Georgetown Hospital. The team leader is expected to join his mates within a week.

Black Yankees Beat Baltimore Sox, 9 to 7

Overcoming a six-run lead, "Fats" Jenkins' New York Black Yankees defeated the Baltimore Black Sox yesterday at Griffith Stadium, 9-7. The game was a slugging match, with the odds in favor of the New Yorkers.

MILLERS 6-1 VICTORS IN BALTIMORE

Capital City Champs Win Opener of Series.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 11.—George Wood bested Joe Piccarelli in a pitcher's battle to give the Miller Furniture Co. nine, champions of the Capital City League, a 6-to-1 victory over Fairy Gold Butter Co., Baltimore titleholders, in the opening game of their series for the South Atlantic senior championship. The score is not indicative of the closeness of the game.

Wood allowed the Fairy Gold sluggers only six hits, but Piccarelli was even better, holding his opponents to five. Piccarelli also fanned fourteen.

The visitors scored two runs in the fourth when Thomas hit a single to center, scoring Maupin and Miller. Piccarelli scored the home team's lone runs in the last half of the same inning on Warner's hit. A three-run Washington rally in the eighth clinched the victory.

Georgetown Rallies in 9th to Capture Junior Crown

Four-Run Splurge Beats Fussell-Youngs for Capital City League Honors, 10 to 7, Before Crowd of 2,000.

A FOUR-RUN rally in the ninth inning that climaxed one of the wildest and most exciting games of the season, yesterday gave the Georgetown A. C. a 10-7 victory over Fussell-Young and the junior championship of the Capital City League. A crowd of 2,000 witnessed the game which was played on the South Ellipse.

"Stump" Talburtt hurled for Georgetown and lasted the full nine innings only because of the brilliant support accorded him. Talburtt was nicked for 11 bingles, one a triple by Joe Sullivan.

But Georgetown treated Sullivan just as roughly, pounding him for 13 hits, one a homer into deep right field by Cliff Keyser.

The game was nip and tuck right up to the final inning. Fussell-Young scored a run in the first inning and Georgetown tied the score with one in the third. Both tallied thrice in the sixth frame, but Fussell-Young got out in front in the eighth when it sent three runners over the pan while Georgetown could bring home only two.

The eventual winners put forth their last efforts in the ninth and they were well rewarded. "Reds" Bauer's hit, one of three credited to the "Bricktop," scored two of the winning markers.

Fussell-Young was seriously handicapped when its catcher, Mikalaski, was injured in the seventh inning.

DESK TO EACH PUPIL NOW SEEMS LIKELY AT ROOSEVELT HIGH

Speeding Up of Delivery Imparts Expectation All Will Be Seated.

Prospects that each one of the 1,620 pupils at the new Roosevelt High School will have a desk and chair when the school opens next Monday became brighter last night when Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, declared that the most essential furniture is rapidly being assembled at the building and should be in place by the time school opens.

Mr. Crane announced that the second carload of desks and chairs was unloaded yesterday and that a third is expected today. This furniture is being assembled in the classrooms and the auditorium as quickly as it arrives, Mr. Crane said.

Workmen Labor Overtime.

The school business superintendent pointed out that a great deal of equipment, including laboratory and classroom accessories, will not arrive until late in October. Desks and chairs, however, should be in place by the time the pupils flock into the new building and there should be no repetition of the situation of last year when pupils at two new elementary schools were forced to sit on the floor, Mr. Crane said.

Workmen have been laboring overtime in order that the desks and chairs might be installed, it was revealed. The school business manager said he had never known finer cooperation from contractors. He pointed out that the Grand Rapids manufacturers did not rest on Labor Day and have worked Sundays in order that the most essential equipment be ready in time for the opening of the school.

Principal Faces Problem.

Mr. Crane said that he is offering no definite promise to the pupils and their parents, as unforseen complications might interfere with the encouraging prospects for the opening of the new school building. If everything runs as smoothly as it has in the last few days, he added, pupils and teachers should find the most necessary comforts when they enter the classrooms.

Allan Davis, principal of the school, is faced with the problem of handling the large number of students, from 100 to 200 more than the school is supposed to accommodate. This difficulty is expected to be overcome.

The new Roosevelt School, at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest, built at a cost of $1,500,000, takes the place of the old Business High School on Rhode Island avenue. This building now becomes a part of the colored school system.

The new school is to be perhaps the most up-to-date and completely equipped in Washington, and a number of new methods of teaching and new courses are to be introduced.

Missing Woman Sought.

A request was made to police yesterday to look out for Mrs. Virginia Reese, who has been missing from her home at the Iowa Apartments at Thirteenth and O streets northwest since Friday. She was said to be in ill health.

The sessions will open at 10 a. m. with a call to order by C. F. Walker, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, president of the association. Dr. A. F. Woods, director of research, U. S. Department of Agriculture, will give the address of welcome, and Thomas P. Littlepage, Washington lawyer, will respond. A business session will follow.

Subjects scheduled for discussion at the afternoon session include keeping nuts in cold storage, Northern varieties 40 miles above the Alabama State line, the National Boy Scout nut tree planting project, pecans west of the Mississippi River and the Gerardi Hican.

Nut Trees in Landscape.

A feature of the afternoon session will be lantern slides of nut trees in landscape, to be shown by B. Y. Morrison, senior horticulturist. Mr. Morrison, who is well known to horticulturists and gardeners of the District, will accompany his illustrations with a lecture.

The black walnut will be the subject of various speakers at this evening's session.

Starting at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow, the nut growers will make a trek to nearby nut orchards. If the weather is unfavorable for the visits Wednesday's sessions will be held tomorrow. Orchards to be visited include Arlington Farm, Arlington, Va.; the two Government plantings of chestnut and one of pecan at Bell, Md.; the pecan and black walnut orchards of Mr. Littlepage, near Bowie; the three nut orchards of the Government at Beltsville, and the 25-acre nut orchard of Col. Mitchell near the grounds of the Congressional Country Club.

How Orchards Are Laid Out.

At the evening session tomorrow Dr. A. S. Colby, professor of pomology, University of Illinois, will speak on recent developments in nut culture in his State; Claire D. 3 Tots Enjoy Long Walk as Police Search

A picturesque trio, their combined ages totaling 11 years, walked more than a mile from their homes yesterday to view the new viaduct near Camp Meigs, while a frantic mother appealed to police to locate them.

With a Chinese playmate, aged 3, in tow, Alvin Padgett, 3, toddling on the arm of his sister, Doris, 5, left home in the afternoon in their Sunday best.

Mrs. Edith Padgett, 50 H street northwest, mother of the missing youngsters, scoured the neighborhood but was unable to find any trace of them. The police were asked to aid the search, and hospitals were notified.

The children finally returned, weary from their long walk, but full of the wonders they had seen.

GREATER '33 SYLVAN FESTIVALS PLANNED

More Than Half of Amount Donated Past Summer Returned to Fund.

Because of the success and public interest in the recent summer festival programs at the National Sylvan Theater in the Washington Monument Grounds, the Community Center Department has announced that next summer's entertainments will be "bigger and better."

No definite plans have been perfected, but it is expected that the opening 1933 program will be given June 14 with an original dance pantomime version of the well-known Arabian Night's story of Ali Baba and the forty thieves, and following this the weekly festival programs will continue throughout July and August.

It is estimated that no less than 50,000 persons, many of whom journeyed from nearby States, saw this season's festivals. This figure is almost twice that of the attendance estimated for the summer of 1931.

Following the success of the presentation of "Pinafore" in August, and the several dance festivals during the summer by outstanding dance groups of the Capital, it is probable that next summer's program will include an even greater variety of events.

Each year a small fund is set aside by the National Capital Civic Fund to help finance the programs at the Sylan Theater, inaugurated four years ago by the Community Center Department, for the recreation of Washington citizens and visitors, but for the first time this summer it has been possible to return an appreciable amount of the money to the treasury of the Civic Fund, and as a result of good weather and large audiences more than half of the amount donated has been returned.

Much credit for the success of the festivals is given to the committee, which includes Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, director of the Community Center Department, and Lieut. F. B. Butler, of the Office of Public Buildings and Parks.

CHAIN-STORE HOLDUP SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Two Sets of Brothers Are Seized in Alexandria in Sanitary Robbery.

Four suspects in the holdup and robbery of a chain grocery store manager Saturday night were arrested in Alexandria, Va., yesterday and brought here while police investigate their possible connection with the case.

The men were arrested on information obtained by Washington and Alexandria police. Detective Sergt. J. W. Wise, attached to police headquarters, went to the Virginia city yesterday afternoon and returned with the suspects for questioning.

The arrested men are two sets of brothers. They said they are Ralph R. and Albert C. Lacey, both 20 years old, of Beaumont, Va., and Luther R. Keys, 24 years old, and his brother, Roy Lee Keys, 18 years old, of Virginia Highlands, Va.

Police declined to say on what grounds they suspected the men. It is understood, however, they answer the general description of bandits wanted in the robbery of Carl W. Burgess, manager of a Sanitary Grocery store at 401 K street northeast Saturday night.

According to police, two men, one armed with a revolver, forced Burgess into a corner of the store and robbed the cash drawer of $70.

Earlier in the afternoon a collector for the same concern, Joseph O. Faulk, was forced into an automobile by two men, who after taking his satchel ordered him out several blocks away. The satchel proved to be empty.

Police said the same description was given of the holdup men in both cases. They said the same men are believed responsible for numerous other chain store robberies during the last few weeks.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IF, perchance, you happen along E street this morning—or afternoon, either, for that matter—and run into a line of people longer than you have been in town, that would be the queue of eager and expectant showhounds hoping to secure good seat locations for the opening of "Humpty Dumpty" at the National Theater a week from tonight. Thus is the faint rumble of the opening of the so-called legitimate season first heard in Washington.

By now, of course, you know that "Humpty Dumpty" is a new idea in musical comedy, both concocted and presented by Laurence Schwab and B. G. "Buddy" DeSylva, with music by Nacio Herb Brown and Richard Whiting, and that it is the first collaboration of the Messrs. Schwab and DeSylva since "Good News" and "Follow Thru."

You may also have heard that its cast will be led by such star-spangled notables as Lou Holtz, Ethel Merman, Eddie Foy, jr., June Knight, J. C. Nugent and Sid Silvers, so we won't even mention them here, but will go right on and give the other members of the troupe a break by saying that among them are Dorris Groday—and, whether you think so or not, that is not supposed to be Louise Groody!—William Lynn, Lisa Silbert, Sara Jane, Vernon Biddle, Walter Armin, Harry Shannon, the Diamond Boys, the Ritz Quartet, Mary and a good many dozen beautiful girls.

And speaking of season inaugurals, Carl Laemmle and Universal Pictures announce the reopening of the Rialto Theater on Thursday night, September 22, with Fannie Hurst's "Back Street" as the first of a succession of special features that will stamp the early fall and winter season at the Ninth street house one of the most notable in its history.

"Back Street," picturized from Miss Hurst's engrossing novel of an imperishable but futile love, has Irene Dunne and John Boles—both Washinton favorites—as its chief players, with ZaSu Pitts, George Meeker, William Bakewell, Arletta Duncan, Doris Lloyd and Walter Catlett in the supporting roles. It is one of the conceded achievements among the distinguished productions in which the new season, so far, has proved extravagantly prolific.

In making its fall bow to the picture-loving public with "Back Street," the Rialto sets itself a standard which, it is promised, will be maintained by Lew Ayres and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Okay, America," by William Anthony McGuire, author of "Kid Boots" and "Six Cylinder Love;" "Air Mail," with Ralph Bellamy, Pat O'Brien, "Slim" Summerville and Lillian Bond and directed by John Ford, who made "Arrowsmith;" "The Old Dark House," from the famous mystery novel by J. B. Priestly, directed by James Whale, maker of "Frankenstein;" "All America," said to be the biggest football picture ever filmed, with Richard Arlen, Ralph Graves, Frank Carideo, Albie Booth, Ernie Nevers, Chris Cagle, Monty Schwartz and numerous other gridiron stars in the line-up; "Once in a Lifetime," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, the play which kidded Hollywood and in which Hollywood now kids itself, with Jack Oakie, Sidney Fox, Aline McMahon, Louise Fazenda and ZaSu Pitts importantly cast.

The local premiere of "Back Street," a week from this Thursday, will be celebrated at 8:30 p. m., at the regular scale of house prices and, as I understand it, with no seats reserved. There will be only one showing of the feature.

For the new season, the Rialto will be under the managing directorship of Rodney Collier, long associated with the Laemmle interests here and elsewhere. Mr. Collier's duties heretofore have been confined largely to publicity and exploitation, although for a time he was manager of the Colony Theater, in New York, the then first-run outlet for Universal product in the metropolis, and, too, has served in the capacity of house manager at the Rialto.

In recognition of long and competent service Mr. Collier now reaps the reward of the faithful by being placed in complete charge of the destinies of a house with which are associated some of the most brilliant achievements in picture exhibition of which the Capital can boast.

It will be a source of satisfaction to the dramatic desks to know that they will be seeing "Rod" around again.

Reverting momentarily to the general topic of inaugurals, that Beau Brummellian Chesterfield of Ninth street and the sports arenas, Mr. Jimmy Lake, tells me happy days are practically here again. The first week's business at the Gayety—scored by his own show, "The Girls From Dixie"—a little better than equaled the house average, despite a streak of the hottest weather this summer has been able to produce.

Imagine my surprise when it turned out to be a letter from Beulah Bondi, the celebrated character actress and hometowner!

Having scored no less than a personal triumph on both stage and screen as Emma Jones in "Street Scene," Miss Bondi's next celluloid appearance will be as Mrs. Davidson, wife of the Reverend Davidson, in United Artists' dialogue version of "Rain" for the Jeanne Eagels role in which Joan Crawford was borrowed from M-G-M.

I am told, among other personal things, that the six weeks on location on Catalina Island were delightful; that Beulah and Leona Powers, leading woman with Mr. Cochran's National Theater Players, are habitual correspondents and that Stuart Walker tried out the play in which Miss Powers is now appearing on Broadway for Miss Bondi once, but somehow got sidetracked, and that until October 1, Beulah is occupying a picturesque little house in Beverly Hills with her brother Raymond, one of my first seatmates in those old Hoosier school days, whose health hasn't been too good lately—the lucky so-and-so!

And now let us bring the meeting to a close by singing one verse and chorus of Hollywood's Vince Barnett song:

"Ribber, stay away from my door!"

POLICE ARE SEEKING ROSSLYN WOMAN IN TORTURE OF GIRL, 11

Said to Have Burned Hands of Daughter Because She Accepted Gift.

Mrs. Lydia Humphries, of Rosslyn, Va., is being sought by Washington and Arlington County authorities, who are investigating a report that she burned the hands of her daughter, Jean, 11 years old, by holding them over a lighted gas burner in punishment for having accepted an orange from a neighbor.

Attention of Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of the board of welfare of Arlington County, was called to the incident which occurred late in August.

Fugitive Warrant Issued.

Early last week Mrs. Jacobs ordered the mother to appear in court to answer a charge of assault on a minor. When she failed to appear in court a fugitive warrant was issued, Mrs. Jacobs told a Post reporter.

The Humphries home on Mackey's Hill near Rosslyn has been deserted since the mother of the child failed to appear in court. Arlington County police have been keeping surveillance over the place since the disappearance of the family; but they failed appear.

Mother Works Here.

So far as Arlington County authorities can learn, the child is still with the mother and father, who are believed to be living in Washington. The mother is employed in a downtown department store here.

Mrs. Jacobs, according to reports, saw the parents of the child last Monday night, and ordered the mother to appear in court on the following day. The child's father is Robert E. Humphries.

Two persons were injured in the collision of a taxicab and a car driven by Sam Catalandi, 40, of 3106 Mount Pleasant street northwest, at Seventh street and Mount Vernon place northwest, yesterday.

Frances Orrisini, of 3106 Mount Pleasant street northwest, received treatment at Sibley Hospital for a broken nose and a laceration of the left leg, while Dominick Roccacello, 333 Bryant street northeast, was treated for a lacerated left leg. Both were passengers in Catalani's car.

Stolen Cab Found Burned; 7 Seized

Two Women and Five Men Held; Four Are Taken at Terra Cotta, D. C.

Seven persons, two of them women, are being held for investigation by police, after four of them were found near a stolen taxicab, which had been burned in a clump of woods in Terra Cotta, D. C.

Private H. A. Cheeney, of the Sixth Precinct, discovered the machine, reported stolen Saturday from John B. Hunter, of 2219 Prout street southeast. The car had been destroyed by fire.

Investigating the nearby woods, Cheeney discovered two men and two women sitting beside a bonfire. They said they were Thelma T. Pumphrey, 17, 142 Eleventh street southeast; Gertrude K. Kesterson, 18, of 507 Tenth street southeast; Herbert R. Pope, 20, of Terra Cotta, and Walter C. Jarboe, 21, also of Terra Cotta. After questioning the four, police later arrested Woodrow M. Dean, 20, of Langdon, D. C.; Alfred J. Down, 21, of Silver Hill, Md., and John Warring, 19, of 912 M street southeast. Down, police said, carried a .38-caliber revolver.
